Hiram Johnson is in New York to fight the street car trust. There is loud outcry, corporation weeping, wailing and gnashing of teeth, with high moral indignation that a Senator of the United States "should engage in private law practice."

Hiram Johnson says: "If I were here with the gentlemen who represent the corporate interests I should be very respectfully treated. But what a different tone it is when I am here for the people! Of course, I mean on the part of the 'shirt front' press."

A good expression—"the shirt front press." Entering a restaurant you look around for a man in a "shirt front" to order what you want and subsequently pay for it.

In that bigger restaurant called the United States the corporation looks around for a "shirt front" newspaper to order what is wanted, and then pay for it.

Fortunately for the people, the corporation frequently orders and pays for what it doesn't get. New York's "shirt front" press has been well cared for by corporations, but some of them, including the street car trust, thanks to Hiram Johnson, are not going to get what they thought they had bought.

Hiram Johnson's New York fight will be against a Republican Governor, Miller, and that Governor is against direct primaries, convinced that "better minds" in an inside room ought to select the people's candidates. Johnson, on the other hand, favors direct primaries, naturally, as he owes to the primaries proof of the fact that he is the strongest man in the Republican party.

In beating the street car trust and Governor Miller, Johnson may save the primaries—an extra inducement to hard work.

Mr. Henry Ford and others allege that Jews are planning "to control the world." They pay the Jews a compliment, giving them credit for enterprise and courage, unusual.

Courtland Smith, president of the American Press Association, calls attention to the fact that on this earth there are about one thousand six hundred and ninety-nine million human beings. Of these fifteen million four hundred and thirty thousand are Jews. And of Jews three million one hundred thousand are in this country.

Jews make up less than 1 per cent. of the population of the world, less than 3 per cent. of the population of the United States. If 1 per cent. plans to conquer 99 per cent., or 3 per cent. undertakes to conquer 97 per cent., give the 3 per cent. or 1 per cent. credit for genuine enterprise.

Mr. Tumulty makes public the opinion of Mr. Houston, Secretary of the Treasury, that an embargo on immigration "would be not only unwarranted, but exceedingly harmful at this time." Mr. Houston deserves thanks for talking common sense on the immigration question.

Of the land in this country 13 per cent. is used and under cultivation. Eighty-seven per cent. is not used. Does that look like excessive population? Do we not need another hundred million white men and women and their children to develop the 87 per cent. of the United States land that lies unused?

Whoever knows anything about business, the determined, constant, intensive effort that produces results, builds up cities and factories, knows that the best thing that could happen to this country would be to receive and start in business 3,000,000 more Jews as quickly as possible.

This is for parents that keep near their children "cats," always dangerous in themselves and always carriers of disease germs in their fur.

Mrs. John Reardon gave a bottle of milk to her eight-months-old baby. The cat, powerful and jealous, attacked the child, biting it dangerously, then attacked the mother. Cats spread scarlet fever, diphtheria and other diseases. Sick children "play with the kitty," and kitty transfers the germs to the cat of the child next door.

A cat in the cellar, killing mice and rats, may have its place, although there are better things than cats for that purpose. A dog out of doors and kept out of doors, may have its place. But whoever brings his children indoors, in contact with animals, brings them in contact with disease, also in danger of hydrophobia.

Eugene Debs was put in prison for saying what somebody didn't like. It was, in fact, imprisoning a man who took too seriously the Constitutional guarantee of free speech. Imprisoned for saying what somebody didn't like, Mr. Debs, in jail, made a speech that also was disliked. Now he is forbidden to see visitors or talk to them.

How does that impress you? Does it not seem a little too drastic for good judgment? Ordinarily, when a man is condemned to death the judge asks him if he has anything to say and lets him say it. He is even allowed to say a few words on the scaffold.

Does it not give to the much advertised and dreaded "Red Radicals" just cause for complaint if you enable them to say truly that they can't talk even in jail?

INTIMATES HE WILL ACCEPT POST

Hoover Ready to Take Commerce Portfolio 'If Given Power to Do Things'

New York, Feb. 24.—Herbert Hoover today announced that his acceptance of the post of Secretary of Commerce in President Harding's Cabinet depended upon being given a free hand in making the Department of Commerce a larger and more important factor in the government, and upon being allowed to direct relief work for starving European children.

Hoover said he had submitted to President-elect Harding certain proposals for reorganizing the Department of Commerce which he termed at at present was but a "group of bureaus of a scientific character not directly connected with our commerce."

He said American prosperity during the next four or five years depended largely upon foreign trade, and that there were vast opportunities for establishing a government department that would render a great service to American trade.

He indicated that he desired more definite assurances from President-elect Harding that he would have free scope in handling the Commerce Department. Hoover assured newspaper men that his proposals to President-elect Harding were not of the "take it or leave it" character.

ALARM IN BANK AS BODY HITS ROOF

Andover Salesman Ends Life in Sensational Manner in Providence

Providence, R. I., Feb. 24.—Hugh P. Morgan, forty-four years old, of Andover, Mass., a traveling salesman for the Tyer Rubber Company of Andover, committed suicide today by leaping from the seventh floor to the first floor of the Industrial Trust Building at Westminster and Exchange streets.

The first floor of the building forms the ceiling of the bank. The terrific crash of the body shattered electric lights and caused a mild panic in the bank, where it was thought an explosion had taken place.

Employes of the bank, and occupants of offices rushed out, expecting to find part of the structure blown away by a bomb. Rumors of an explosion spread through the business and financial districts, in the heart of which the office building is located, and caused much excitement.

TURKS DEMAND FRONTIER AS IT WAS IN 1913

Cause Sensation at London by Rejecting Sevres Treaty Clauses

By International News Service.

London, Feb. 24.—The Turkish delegates attending the Near East Conference today demanded that the frontier of Turkey in Europe be re-aligned as it existed in 1913, after the Balkan war.

The Turks rejected the principal clauses of the Treaty of Sevres, which partitioned a great part of the old Turkish Empire among the Allies.

The drastic nature of the Turkish demands created a sensation. The Ottoman envoys demanded that the Greeks evacuate Smyrna immediately. Also, they insisted that Thrace should be returned to Turkey.

The Turks requested that the eastern frontier be fixed upon the basis of the pre-war Turko-Persian boundary.

The status of the Armenian frontiers was left open to future negotiations.

BRYAN WRITES "IF I WERE HARDING!"

NEXT BOSTON SUNDAY ADVERTISER (FEB. 27)

CHARGE 'COAL CLAUSE' PROFITS EDISON CO. 25 P. C.

Bostonians are paying from 100 to 200 per cent. more for electricity than the people of other large cities of the United States. This, according to experts, is the result of the complete monopoly enjoyed by the Edison Electric Illuminating Company of Boston.

Although Boston is a tide water city, which should make it possible for a large concern like the Edison Electric Illuminating Company to secure coal at a favorable price, there are many inland cities where coal must be hauled by rail that have much cheaper electric light rates. This is true even of cities near Boston. The people of Holyoke pay only 6 cents for the amount of electricity that Bostonians pay 11. Those in Worcester pay 8 cents for a similar amount.

In some cities where there is but a slight difference in the cost of coal, electricity is sold for as low as three and four cents per thousand kilowatt hours. The Boston price is 11 cents.

COAL CLAUSE INGENIOUS.

Many Boston business men and householders are up in arms against the extra charge of 5 per cent. to all bills which is being added by the Edison Company here under its self-imposed "coal clause." This is the clause that City Councillor James A. Watson attacked.

The "coal clause" which Councillor Watson and others so strenuously object to will undoubtedly remain on all bills sent out by the Edison Company of Boston until twenty or more consumers file objections with the State Public Utilities Department. No hearing will be given until that number of consumers file written objection to the clause. Experts who have studied the coal clause of the Edison Company say it is ingeniously worded.

The claim is made that it is worded in such a way that not only does the consumer pay the added cost of coal above the 1916 price but he also bears the burden if the coal purchased is of inferior grade.

GUARANTEES PROFITS.

The clause is written in such a manner, according to experts, that the company is actually making 25 per cent. profit on the extra cost. It charges the consumer 1¼ cents per thousand kilowatt hours extra under the coal clause. It has been figured that one cent would amply cover the extra coal charge.

Experts say that there is no incentive for the Edison company to buy coal at a low price, purchase good coal or conduct its business efficiently, as 25 per cent profit is made on the extra charge.

Hence, it is claimed, if high priced or inferior coal is purchased and if the business is conducted in an inefficient manner, the company makes more on the coal clause than otherwise.

BUSINESS MEN OPPOSE.

A. J. Paine, member of the firm of McKenney & Waterbury Company, No. 181 Franklin street, dealers in gas and electric light fixtures, is opposed to the coal clause and believes it should be eliminated. He said: "I believe the coal clause is a holdup and should be done away with. I am against the clause on principle."

Members of the printing firm of F. E. Bacon & Company are opposed to the clause and are of the opinion that it should be removed from consumers. One of the firm said: "We are opposed to anything that makes an added burden for the business man to carry."

Fred E. Hall of Fred E. Hall & Co., printers and manufacturing stationers, said: "I am opposed to the 5 per cent. coal clause, and I believe many small business men are opposed to it, although I feel that most of them do not know why the clause is in their bills. What are we going to do about it? Why don't some of the big business men of Boston start something to bring about its elimination?"

WATSON CHARGES CAMOUFLAGE.

City Councillor Watson, replying to the statement of President Charles L. Edgar of the Edison Company, charged Mr. Edgar with "an effort to camouflage the issue." He adds: "I know of one case where on a charge of not less than $2,000 for electricity supplied to a Boston consumer the charge under the 'fuel clause' amounted to nearer 50 per cent. than 10 per cent."

He further said:

"The city of Boston uses approximately $600,000 worth of electricity for the public buildings and street lighting, and $600,000 is approximately 5 per cent. of the Edison company's total business. In view of this I ask the American to use its efforts, and make use of my limited power to take up this fight against the Edison company in behalf of the great consuming public of the city of Boston.

"It is my opinion that the Edison company, through its officials, is an arrogant, profiteering, soulless, heartless and public-be-damned organization, and if the American backed by the great public of Boston, as I believe it is, will continue this fight there can be but one result—that the people will rule rather than this privileged, "melon-cutting" corporation.

SHOWS COAL IS CHEAPER.

"For the purpose of disputing Mr. Edgar's statement that the Edison Company is not getting its coal cheaper now than six months ago I will go back to November, 1920, and assume that the company bought only the best grade New River coal.

"The price for November, 1920, f. o. b. mine to small consumers as compared with the Edison Company was $6 per ton, December 1920, $5 per ton, f. o. b. mine, January, 1921, $4, f. o. b. mine and today on February 24, New River coal in any large quantity can be purchased at $2.75 per ton, f. o. b. mine, and this is for gross ton of 2,240 pounds.

"Is it possible, Mr. Edgar, that the Edison Company is being discriminated against by the coal operators? I can hardly believe this to be true. For Mr. Edgar's benefit I want to say that my activities will not be directed alone at the Edison Company, but that I have just as strong evidence backed by facts, showing that the Boston Consolidated Gaslight Company is working along the same lines in the matter of profiteering, plus poor gas, as is his company, and that with the assistance of the Boston American this corporation, as well, will be compelled to use the consumers in Boston in a different manner from which they are using them now."

Figures Show Light Costs Most Here

Here are the figures which show how the electric light monopoly of Boston affects the pocketbook of citizens. Bostonians pay 11 cents per thousand kilowatt hours for electricity. Here's what people of other large cities pay:

	Municipal Plant	Private Plant
Cleveland, O.	3 cents	5 cents
Pasadena, Cal.	....	4 cents
Columbus, O.	5 cents	7 cents
Tacoma, Wash.	5 cents	....
Seattle, Wash.	6 cents	6 cents

Money and False Teeth Blown Away by Gale

Putnam, Ct., Feb. 24.—One sad feature of the recent storm occurred here. A man waiting for a trolley car to Grosvenordale, dropped his pocketbook containing a large sum of money. It was immediately whipped away by the gale, but might have been recovered by the owner if he had not attempted to help a woman who sneezed out her false teeth. The teeth were also blown away.

At Westminster, a buck and fourteen deer took refuge under the church sheds and remained until the storm was over.

U.S. AND LEAGUE AT ODDS OVER YAP MANDATE

Japan Refuses to Allow Any Reconsideration of Award Terms

ly places the United States at loggerheads with the league, was delivered immediately after American Ambassador Wallace had handed President De Cunha a long note from Washington formally warning the league that America would never recognize the Japanese Yap mandate. It also demanded that the league revoke the class C mandates announced in December and reconsider the whole matter.

IGNORED U. S. WISHES.

The Washington note expressed the great surprise of the American government that the league had given the Yap mandate to Japan without consulting the United States. It stated that Washington had plainly intimated on several occasions the importance of the island of Yap as a cable station, such as should not be given to any power but should be internationalized or placed under American protection.

The note told the league plainly that America expects mandate decisions to be made with absolute impartiality, notwithstanding the fact that she is not a member of the league.

Former Premier Balfour, of England, suggested that the "whole matter should be kept from the press until a decision is taken."

This proposal was obviously inspired by Balfour's desire to get in touch with Lloyd George for instructions.

Wellington Koo, for China, backed by the Marquis Imperiali, Italian delegate, suggested that the council immediately discuss the note, in order to take definite action before the end of the day's session.

DECISION LATER.

This move was blocked by British and French delegates, who were desirous of communicating the matter to the Supreme Council in London, thus confirming what has long been an open secret, that the League Council's decisions really emanate from Lloyd George.

The session finally closed with no action having been taken, it being officially announced that the "Council has decided to take the American note under careful consideration and will announce a decision later."

floor corridor noticed Morgan standing between the offices of Attorney William R. Champlain, and the four-foot railing of the rotunda reading a letter.

Suddenly came a resounding crash. Philip E. Campbell of Room 233, Industrial Trust Building, and Louis E. Sherman of Seekonk, Mass., on the second floor saw a human form whirl past. They hastened to the floor below.

Dr. W. Louis Chapman, and Ambulance Surgeon Charles A. Leving, summoned to the scene, pronounced Morgan dead. His head was crushed beyond recognition, and almost every bone in the body was broken.

The body was identified from documents in the pockets. There was also found on the person $38 in cash, and two bank books, one on the Andover National Bank, and the other on the Industrial Trust Company.

From papers found on the body the authorities believe Morgan was married.

MOTIVE A MYSTERY.

Medical Examiner Clifford H. Griffin viewed the body and pronounced death due to suicide. He ordered the body removed to the undertaking rooms of Charles E. Barber, No. 37 Broadway.

Morgan lived at oN. 84 Main street, Andover, Mass. No one in the Industrial Trust Building knew him, nor could anyone give any clew as to the motives for his suicide.

The building is a big modern office structure, with entrances on Westminster street, Exchange street and Exchange place. The ground floor is occupied by the bank. Above the first floor the structure is built in the form of a great hollow square, the offices leading from corridors bordering a big rotunda. It was into this rotunda that Morgan plunged, after climbing over a railing four feet high.

The Right To Save

Don't Gamble
A Stingy Man
The Cent Profit
Tips and Tickets
At Last We See

AN EDITORIAL ON BUYING

THIS country has passed through a period of price inflation.

That period is past, definitely past; but we are still feeling its effects. This inflation touched us on all sides. We were both cause and effect. Increases in necessities, increases in luxuries, in food, rent, clothing; in fact everything from tips to theatre tickets climbed in price.

And along with these advances, sometimes anticipating them, rose wages. The only thing which did not increase was personal ability. The more we made the less we did; and the more we demanded. We denied ourselves nothing but common sense and the right to save.

The only possible result from such thoughtless selfishness was a slump. And then we became as unreasoning in our economy as we had been in our extravagance.

We became almost like the man who economized on horse feed until his horse died. In fact, we are worse than this man, for, in refusing to buy those things which we needed we threw both ourselves and others out of employment.

At last we begin to see how foolish we have been. We are learning the economy of buying, which is the economy of saving.

The thrifty buyer buys just before he is forced to do so; and buys that which is known, reliable, and carries the guarantee of reputation.

Known goods are like public persons.

If they are not up to standard they are soon found out.

That is why thrifty people insist on having advertised goods, goods which are known, which carry the name of a manufacturing house that is so sure of the quality of its product it is willing to publish its name with its wares.

Advertised goods are not only the most economical in quality, but are also more economical in price for such quality. That is because advertised goods are sold in larger quantities and so can sell at a smaller individual profit. One cent of profit on each 100 articles brings five times the return that does two cents of profit on each of ten articles.

Advertising reduces selling prices by increasing the number of sales.

Also when you buy advertised goods you are helping to give employment to a known number of workers. Factories making advertised goods have a reputation to maintain, not only in the quality of the goods sold, but in the payment of bills, keeping of contracts and in the treatment of their workers.

So you see when you buy advertised goods you are not only saving money through getting goods of proven quality at a reasonable price, but you are helping the workers who make those goods to keep employed and also to save.

The sooner all of us insist on buying only advertised goods, the sooner will we help each other to live right and save sensibly. Do not speculate in buying. Do not gamble with unknown articles. Maintain your right to save by buying the goods about which you read.

CLARA HAMON PLEADS FOR FREEDOM TO ATONE FOR HER PAST

GIRL FACING TRIAL TELLS OF HAPPY ROMANCE DAYS

On March 10 in a little courthouse at Ardmore, Okla., Clara Smith Hamon will go on trial on a charge of having murdered Jake Hamon, multi-millionaire oil man and a prominent figure in Oklahoma politics. Mrs. Hamon has written her story for the International News Service. It will be carried in two instalments. The second instalment will be carried tomorrow.

By CLARA SMITH HAMON.

Written expressly for the International News Service.
(Copyright, 1921, by International News Service.)

Clara Smith Hamon

Ardmore, Okla, Feb. 24.—I beseech those with fairness in their hearts not to look upon me as a woman who parades her past before the curious merely to satisfy an inhuman craving for notoriety. I write this as a warning to butterflies blinded by the flame of adventure.

At this moment I can think of no greater happiness than to have my name forgotten, to have it in my power to go somewhere far away, alone with God and my soul.

I cannot believe it is too late to make atonement. I am not yet thirty and I cannot believe my life is done. I cannot believe that I shall never be able to face the world again with a chance to prove that I am worthy of respect, because I want that chance above everything else in the world. I now plead for fair play.

VICTIM OF UNTRUTHS.

It isn't fair that while I am helpless waiting for trial I should be condemned beyond my desert. I have been pictured as a wanton who became a man's sweetheart for the money and luxuries he could give her. I have been pictured as a woman who heartlessly lured a man from his wife and children. I cannot bear to have these things said. They are not true. Those who know my life, even those who are unfriendly to me, know they are not true.

If there is one thing I can say with pride it is that I have never been a parasite woman. I have worked hard for every bit of happiness I have had in my life. I worked side by side with the man I loved while he made his fortune.

I helped him as he climbed step by step in his career. I do not say this with bitterness. I do not begrudge my labors for him. I loved him then and I wished no greater happiness than to work for him. He had been the only man in my life.

In the ten years I was with him I never had luxuries. I had comforts. Yes, when we traveled we stopped at good hotels and in New York and Washington we stayed at fashionable places. But those familiar with my life in Ardmore know that I did not have even comforts here.

FIFTEEN WHEN SHE MET HIM.

I was only fifteen when I met him. He tried to win me as even then—to beguile me with the flattery and gifts of a world-wise man—and I? a mere schoolgirl, with curls. He bought me candy and perfumes and other things that would appeal to a girl of that age, but, thank God, I was more interested in boys of my own years then and this man of forty seemed quite ancient to me.

At sixteen I had to leave school to go to work. I do not think I was as frivolous as most gorls of that age. There was little time for frivolity in my home. My parents had a hard struggle to make both ends meet, and from childhood I knew I would have to become a wage earner. How proud I felt when I took home my first week's wages. I had gone into a store at Lamton as bookkeeper.

At seventeen my life became linked with Jake L. Hamon's. He had persisted in his attentions during the two years following my school days. He pressed his attention upon me on every occasion. He told me I was beautiful. No one had ever told me that before. He did everything that would turn the head of a girl of that age.

I was a small-town girl. Remember, I had never been outside of Oklahoma. I could conceive of no adventure more wonderful than a trip to Kansas City or Fort Worth. They seemed as far away and as inaccessible as the North Pole to my simple mind.

NOT AN EASY VICTIM.

But, despite my ignorance and inexperience, I was not an easy victim to this man old enough to be my father. He had to persist to win me, for rooted in me was the ideal held before the average girl—that the goal for every woman is marriage, and that her love and virtue are to be surrendered only to the man God had destined for her to wed.

Like most girls of seventeen, I was full of romance. I had a dream man (young and splendid), who some day would come a-wooing and carry me far away to love and be loved always and always.

Both my father and mother were orphans from childhood. My mother had had a lonely existence until my father came into her life. He was her first and only sweetheart. She waited for him five years. My romance was to be as sweet as theirs, but, of course, not without its flaws. Without these, it was the most beautiful in all the world.

And when my sweetheart came he was not young and splendid like my dream man. But love waves a magic wand and the eyes behold the image the heart desires.

A girl of seventeen has not the judgment of a woman. How was I to know that the wooing of this man who pressed his attention on me, who pursued me for two years, was nothing more than a campaign carefully planned to work on the susceptibility of an inexperienced small-town girl with all the conventional traditions?

I laughed when he told me I was beautiful. But it did not fill me with pride. His gifts dazzled my simple eyes. They were inexpensive gifts, but to me they were as wonderful as pearls and diamonds.

PROMISED GIRL CAREER.

He told me of his ambitions and how necessary I was to his future. An enticing picture he painted for me, the unsophisticated small-town girl of seventeen. He would send me to business college, then take me into his office as a stenographer, and, by helping and inspiring him, I would have a real part in his career as he rose to power.

At first he seemed so horribly old! After I had yielded to him he seemed old no longer, but every bit as young and splendid as the hero of my dreams. For love had waved a magic wand before the eyes of seventeen. I had given him the first love of seventeen. I had not then the judgment of a woman. I had not a woman's experience to show me the folly of my acts. I simply had yielded, for "seventeen" could no longer resist.

He sent me to business college in Oklahoma City and later to a school at Fort Worth. When I finished my business courses I entered his office as stenographer.

He was not a rich man when I went to him. He wanted wealth, and he saw his opportunity in oil. I went with him into the oil fields. I stayed with him night and day as he waited for his first oil well to bring him fortune or failure. Many nights we went without sleep, many times without food. We slept sometimes in our automobile far out in the fields. There are no comforts or conveniences in an oil field. Any woman who has stayed in the fields day in and day out knows the hardships I endured.

But I was with the man who taught me to love him. He wanted me there and nothing else mattered. Those days in the oil fields were the sweetest and happiest in my life. It was so glorious to feel that he needed me and that I was helping him achieve his dreams.

FAMED HOLY HOUSE AT LORETO BURNED

Milan, Feb. 23.—The Holy House at Loreto, one of the leading pilgrimage places of the Roman Catholics, was burned during the night, the altar and the famous image of the Virgin being destroyed, it became known today.

The Holy House contained the Santa Casa, or reputed house of the Virgin, which, according to tradition, was brought to Loreto from Nazareth by angels when the Christians lost their last foothold on the Holy Land. The Santa Casa is a small stone building, surrounded by a marble screen.

DUNCAN FORCES PAPER TO PRINT HIS "ANSWER"

Paris, Feb. 24.—The Paris edition of the New York Herald submitted to the rule recently decided by the French Supreme Court granting a right to answer newspaper criticisms.

Claiming his right under "Article Thirteen" aimed at unjust criticisms, which has recently been upheld, Raymond Duncan forced the Herald to publish a three-column description of a meeting and including the futurist poem, "Out of the Mud." Duncan alleged that the Herald's criticism had been an unwarranted attack.

WOMAN WHO STOLE FUR COAT GIVEN 5 YEARS

Northampton, Feb. 24.—Mrs. Florence M. Davis of Springfield, charged with the larceny of a $600 fur coat, the property of a student, from the Alumni House at Smith College, was sentenced to the State Reformatory for a term of five years. The police claim that Mrs. Davis admitted other thefts.

Actress Sues Man Who Blocked Her Suicide

By Universal Service.

Paris, Feb. 24.—Jumping suddenly from a moving taxicab as it crossed the Concorde bridge in Paris, Mlle. Simone Brever, an actress, reached the parapet and threw herself downward.

Rene Beton, a lawyer, was passing at the time. He made a grab and seized Simone's skirt, holding her suspended from the bridge until a policeman arrived to help him pull her up.

At the police station, where she was charged with attempted suicide, Simone said she had quarrelled with her sweetheart, an aviator, who told her to "go and jump in the Seine."

And now Simone is suing her saviour, claiming damages to the extent of 1,000 francs, the price of her gown.

ATTACK MOVIE CENSOR BILL AS AUTOCRATIC

Opponents Score Women's Clubs for Efforts to Obtain New Film Law

Severely criticising the attempts of the women's clubs and other organizations to secure State censorship of moving pictures, representatives of the motion picture industry, the American Federation of Labor and individual remonstrants appeared before the legislative Committee on Mercantile Affairs.

They said that the placing of the arbitrary power of judging what other people shall see into the hands of a small group of men would be autocratic and against the ideals of free speech and free thought.

Judge J. Albert Brackett, counsel for the moving picture producers, said:

"There is enough law on our statute books now for any person to prosecute the exhibition of a film that is indecent or immoral. If they think that there are such films why don't they bring the matter to the courts?

Miss Edith M. Haynes, representing the Massachusetts Association of Women Lawyers, supported Judge Brackett in his statement.

Miss Sybil Holmes declared that not all the opponents of State censorship are connected with the moving picture industry. "It is an encroachment upon local self-government," she said, "and should not be considered."

Charles Hodsdon of the American Federation of labor said that labor is absolutely opposed to State censorship and that the federation went on record as opposed to it at their last State convention.

20 MILLION FOR YOUNG HARVARD SOPHOMORE

John Nicholas Brown Takes Possession of Huge Estate Left by Father

John Nicholas Brown, Harvard sophomore, formerly known as "Baby Brown of Newport," celebrated his twenty-first birthday by taking possession of an estate estimated at $20,000,000.

The young man is a great grandson of the late Nicholas Brown, for whom Brown University was named.

About one-fourth of the student's fortune was left him by his father, John Nicholas Brown, Sr., who died in 1900, and one-half by the death of John Carter Brown, his uncle, over whose will there was considerable litigation.

In his infancy "Baby" Brown was the most carefully guarded child in the world, every safeguard being adopted by his wealthy mother to protect him.

He had a governess who spoke seven languages, his own automobile, pony, private "swan" bath, and a special night watchman who rang in a time clock which also photographed him on entering and leaving the premises.

Before his tenth year he had visited England and was a continental traveler before getting out of his teens.

At Harvard young Brown proved himself to be a normal American youth, taking up boxing and rowing among other sports, and enlisting as a seaman in the Harvard naval unit. After leaving college he will become a banker.

Mrs. Brown has closed her Newport villa and is living in Boston in order to be near her son while he is studying.

Girl's Empty Shoes Go Walking, She Says

Londonderry, N. H., Feb 24.—O-o-o-h! Spooks, shivery and mysterious, are at work in Londonderry.

Hair is on end throughout the countryside at tales of a "haunted" house on the outskirts of the town, occupied by Mrs. Sedley Lowd, well-to-do widow of seventy-five.

Mrs. Lowd's list of strange happenings, all since Saturday night, include the following:

That when her daughter visited her and went to bed for the night, her shoes walked from room to room and her hat hung itself on a different hook.

That, while Mrs. Lowd was working at her sewing, buttons flew about, and that, on another occasion, a stick of wood flew from behind the stove and hit her in the nose.

That chairs have turned over without human assistance, that leaves of a table have changed places, that a coal hod, of its own volition, emptied itself on the kitchen floor. "Rappings" have been heard.

The "haunted" house is an ordinary old-fashioned farmhouse. Nothing ever transpired there to cause even the most ambitious spook to "walk."

Neighbors bear out some of Mrs. Lowd's statements as to peculiar events in the farmhouse. So does her nine-year-old grandson, Frank.

So far search for natural or mechanical causes for the alleged phenomena have discovered nothing.

PASTOR PLEADS SELF-DEFENCE IN KILLING

By International News Service.

Windsor, Ont., Feb. 24.—Taking the stand at a night session of the court in his own defence, the Rev. J. O. L. Spracklin, former Methodist pastor and special liquor inspector, charged with manslaughter in connection with the murder of Beverly Trumble, proprietor of the Chappelle House November 6, testified that he shot in self defence.

"Trumble came toward me saying: 'Damn you, Spracklin, I'll kill you.' His gun was about four inches from my stomach when he stopped. I looked into his eyes and saw the expression there and then—I pulled the trigger," he said.

LANSING FORCED TO QUIT AFTER WAR THREAT

His Confidential Stenographer Reveals Secretary Opposed Wilson Mexican Policy

Washington, Feb. 24.—The mystery surrounding the dismissal of Robert Lansing as Secretary of State seemed near solution today when it was learned that a letter first filed at the White House and later sent to the State Department declares positively that he threatened Mexico with war unless that country complied with our demands. This was in direct opposition to the Mexican policies laid down by President Wilson.

The letter states that the threat was contained in a verbal note delivered by A. C. Kirk, confidential assistant to the Secretary of State, who informed the Mexican ambassador that decision had been reached.

The writer, J. M. Ostrey, formerly confidential stenographer to Secretary Lansing and now superintendent of the high school at Dodge, Neb., relates that he transcribed the stenographic notes apparently taken at the time America's decision was announced to Mexico.

FORCED LANSING TO RESIGN.

This remarkable incident is understood to have occurred in December, 1919, shortly after W. O. Jenkins, the United States consular agent, was kidnaped at Puebla, Mexico, and the issue thus created had become a most serious one between the United States and the Carranza government. At the same time American oil interests were making strenuous objection to their treatment by Carranza.

By a somewhat curious coincidence, everybody connected with the delivery of this verbal note or who had immediate knowledge of it, has either been compelled to resign or has been sent as far away from Washington as it was possible to go.

Mr. Lansing himself was forced to resign February 13, 1920. Mr. Ostrey says he was immediately removed as Mr. Lansing's confidential secretary and forbidden access to the files of the State Department and later was compelled to leave the department altogether. Mr. Kirk was made secretary to the embassy at Tokio and sent to Japan.

OSTREY "PERSECUTED."

Curiously enough Mr. Ostrey's letter was not written to acquaint Mr. Tumulty, to whom it was addressed, with the Lansing note, which he apparently assumed was already well within the knowledge of the White House but to make protest against certain unfair discriminations which he says were practiced against him after he transcribed the note.

Mr. Ostrey says he was not only immediately removed from Mr. Lansing's office, but the alleged persecutions against him did not culminate until October, 1920, when he declared he was falsely accused of permitting Paul Hanna, Washington correspondent of the New York Call, to gain access to certain files from which he (Hanna) almost obtained a letter written by L. C. K. Martens, Soviet ambassador to the United States.

At the State Department it was stated that matters of this kind would be referred to Wilbur J. Carr, in charge of State Department personnel. Mr. Carr said he did not remember receiving the letter. He added, however, Mr. Ostrey resigned.

DOCTOR FELLED WITH IRON BAR BY ROBBERS

Jewish Educator Attacked in New York, Reported Near Death

New York, Feb. 24.—While crossing a vacant lot to his home in Woodhaven, Queens, Wilbert Kosjer, instructor in the Jewish Theological Seminary, was assaulted by two footpads, who knocked him unconscious with an iron bar. When assaulted the doctor fought and cried for help. Detectives Krummel and Reeman of the Richmond Hill police station, who were at the Elevated station at Park row and Liberty avenue, near the scene of the attempted holdup, rushed to the lot. They surprised the alleged thugs, who started to run away.

Shots fired by the detectives brought them to a halt and they were taken to the Richmond Hill station and locked up. They described themselves as Peter Mancetta, twenty years old, and Joseph Alfonseo, seventeen years old.

RECORD CROWDS URGE DAYLIGHT SAVING LAW

Capital and Labor Join in Demand Before Legislative Committee Hearing

Organized capital and organized labor joined hands in the forcible demand for the retention of daylight saving at the hearing before the legislative Committee on Legal Affairs.

The men who own the factories and the men and women who work in them were supported in their plea for the extra hour of daylight by the health and tuberculosis societies, chiefs of police, homes for aged people, city councils, chambers of commerce, religious and social organizations and by an imposing delegation of farmers in the most sizable demand for a law made in many years on Beacon Hill.

A. Lincoln Filene, chairman of the Daylight Saving Committee of the Boston Chamber of Commerce, summed up the entire argument for daylight saving when, pointing to the overcrowded committee audience, he said:

"We are convinced that an overwhelming majority of the people want daylight saving, that they derive material benefit from the law and that such an injury as may have come to the minority which opposes the law is not unavoidable injury, and with proper adjustments can be eliminated."

FARMERS NOT UNANIMOUS.

In answer to the arguments made by the farmers Mr. Filene said:

"Farmers are not unanimously opposed to daylight saving. A questionnaire sent out by the Massachusetts Agricultural College last year brought replies from 511 farmers, of whom 114, or 22 per cent., were in favor of daylight saving. Of the 737 opposed to daylight saving only 164 reported any loss of time and only 212 claimed loss of production. A representative of our committee has within the past month talked with more than 60 farmers on this question. He has found some farmers in favor of daylight saving and many farmers indifferent as well as many opposed to it.

AID TO HEALTH.

"We have suggested to the Grange that a referendum of Grange members be taken, for we believe that many of their 35,000 members are in favor of daylight saving and we question any statement that Grange members are solidly against it."

A mass of interesting statistics was put in to support the demand for retention of the extra hour. Daylight saving was said to be requested by sixteen city governments, 133 commercial, civic, labor, medical and social welfare organizations with a membership of more than 50,000; 378 industrial concerns with 150,000 employes, 30,000 industrial workers who have signed petitions, 49,353 industrial workers who voted for it in polls and 10,000 other citizens who have signed petitions.

A vote among physicians showed 1,513 in favor and 284 opposed. Ninety-eight hospitals voted for it and eighteen against. Among the optometrists, 291 favored and twenty-one opposed. Among the industries, 549 voted "yes" and twenty-one "no."

Dr. William C. Woodward, Health Commissioner of Boston; Henry Abrahams of organized labor, Dr. Spencer of the Massachusetts Tuberculosis League, Robert A. Woods of the South End House and Park Commissioner Shea of Boston were among the other speakers.

WAR ON RATS IN BOSTON IS ADVOCATED

Costs Country $2 Yearly to Feed Each Rodent, Says Woman "Ratologist"

"Build the rat out, starve the rat out and then kill what are left."

This is the recipe which Mrs. Albert T. Leatherbee, "Ratologist" and lecturer for the Boston Women's Municipal League, gives for the slogan for as thoroughgoing a rat campaign as Boston needs. At the auditorium, Jordan Marsh's, this afternoon, and Friday, Mrs. Leatherbee lectures on the present danger to Boston from the rat and the way to get rid of him.

CARTOON TELLS STORY.

"O. P. Williams had a cartoon," Mrs. Leatherbee began, "in the Boston American, which summed up the rat menace. In that picture he showed rats in the foreground and the spectres of death and disease following. The cartoon was called 'Scouts of the Enemy.' The Boston American's cartoon summed the situation up, with finality.

"Rats are filthy. They live and burrow in sewers and dumps, then turn to your home pantry, with the disease germs all ready to poison your food. They are directly responsible, through the flea which they carry in their fur, for bubonic plague. Ninety-five to ninety-eight deaths per hundred result from those stricken with the plague. The disease is already in our country, in Texas, Florida, and suspected elsewhere.

COST US $2 A YEAR.

"Since Boston is a large port of entry, for rats from ships, it is doubly important for Boston to fight the rat just now. We hear much of typhus; and we know that always in the past bubonic plague and typhus have gone hand in hand. Therefore, the Women's Municipal League, with increased endeavor, is trying to exterminate the rat, for the safety of us all.

"But, besides saving us from disease, we will save our dollars, if we start fighting the rat in earnest. There are as many rats as humans in our country. It costs us two dolars a year to feed each rat in the United States. A healthy pair of rats, in a year, will breed 800 young ones. Therefore, redouble the campaign against them.

TRAPS ARE BETTER.

"Now as to ways of killing. Poison is fairly dangerous. Traps are better. The steel guillotine trap, and the wood bottom trap, are excellent. They should be baited with attractive bait, set in unsuspicious places, in corners and in the dark, and they should be smoked and handled with gloves to keep the scent of human hands from warning off the enemy.

"The time has come to rout the rat. Our health demands it; our pocketbook demands it; decent economy and decent living, and decent standards demand that, at least, today, every individual constitute himself responsible for ridding whatever premises over which he has control from the pest which breeds in the human family the worst plague known to man."

SIMPLE APPLICATION THAT DISSOLVES BLACKHEADS

No more squeezing and pinching to get rid of those unsightly blemishes blackheads. There is one simple, safe and sure way to get them out and that is to dissolve them. To do this just get about two ounces of calonite powder from your druggist—sprinkle a little on a hot, wet sponge—rub briskly over the blackheads for a few seconds—wash the parts and every blackhead will be gone.

Pinching and squeezing out blackheads makes large pores and you cannot get all of the blackheads out this way—while this simple application of calonite powder and water dissolves every particle of them and leaves the skin and pores in their natural condition. Any druggist will sell you the calonite powder and about two ounces will be all you will ever need.—Advertisement.

'BRITAIN'S WAY ROAD TO WAR,' SAYS BRIAND

Paris, Feb. 24.—"England's way is the road to war. France declines to follow."

These dramatic words were spoken, it is reported from private sources, by Premier Brian of France to Premier Lloyd George of England, following a conference.

At this conference Lloyd George had again flatly refused to consider a revision of the Turkish peace treaty. It was believed here that this means that France has definitely decided to throw her lot with Italy for Turkey and against England and Greece.

When this decision was communicated to Lloyd George unofficially following a session of the Supreme Council, the British Premier is reported here to have said ironically:

"I do not care how many separate peaces France signs as long as the British navy continues to guard the Dardanelles."

Speaking to Universal Service, a high official with anxiety plainly written on his face, said:

"By her refusal to abandon her suicidal policy of Near East imperialism, England has shattered the alliances born of the war and issued a definite challenge to the outraged civilization of the entire world."

URGES WOMEN TO STUDY POLITICS

Miss Driscoll, School Committee Member of Cambridge, Fights for Teachers

While woman is mentally man's equal and in many cases his superior, she nevertheless needs to study politics a great deal, according to Miss Nora J. Driscoll of the Cambridge School Board, hailed as "the next Mayor" of that city.

Miss Driscoll, who is heading a fight for more money for Cambridge school teachers, told a Boston American representative that women are interested in children and schools and therefore must be educated to the necessity of paying adequate salaries to teachers.

In her apartment at No. 1200 Massachusetts avenue, Cambridge, she discussed the teachers' salary situation and gave some of her impressions of politics.

CLEVER CAMPAIGNER.

The young woman surprised politicians by defeating John F. Gadsby for re-election to the Cambridge School Board, and is said to excel any other woman in the University City as a campaigner.

"The fight for more pay for the Cambridge school teachers started about a week ago," she said. "A letter was received by the local school committee from the legislative committee of the Cambridge Teachers' Club calling attention to the fact that our city is twelfth on the list as regards teachers' salaries.

"About a year ago the teachers in our Cambridge schools got an increase, but not the amount they sought, which was $600. Meanwhile Boston has again raised the wages of its teachers, and the Cambridge teachers feel that at this time when the new budget is being prepared, their request for more pay should be brought to the attention of our citizens.

ADEQUATE WAGES.

"If we are to compete with other cities in holding teachers at their tasks, we must give them adequate wages. That is why I say that women should be educated in politics. I find that women are more easily swayed than men, and I do want them to vote intelligently. Mentally woman is man's equal and in many cases his superior, but they do need to study politics more. You see, women are interested in children and schools.

"It is true that I am being spoken of as the next Mayor of Cambridge. I hope it comes true for I believe I could do a lot for the good of the people. There is one thing we women have got to contend with, and that is jealousy. Women with clean records need never fear to enter politics. Men are willing to be fair on political issues and will give women a fair show."

Miss Driscoll, who is a teacher in a business college, was the first president of the Women's Democratic City Committee of Cambridge.

Five Garages Built to Each House in '20

Five garages were built for every dwelling house in Boston during 1920, Herbert A. Wilson, building commissioner, declared before the Boston Women's Civic Club at the Hotel Brunswick. More garages are now being built than houses, he added.

He declared that 440 garages and eighty-eight dwelling houses were erected in 1920, and 606 garages and forty-five houses in 1919. In 1915, 1,176 houses and 232 garages were built, he said.

Mr. Wilson pointed out that more than $16,000,000 had been held up in Boston by the building trades strike.

CARUSO'S VOICE UNIMPAIRED BY ILLNESS

Tenor Still Has Fever Which Is Occasioning Some Concern

New York, Feb. 24.—Enrico Caruso's larynx, or "throatbox," is just as good as ever and his peerless tones will again thrill operatic and concert audiences, providing his convalescence continues.

Two of the premier tenor's physicians declared that his unmatched vocal organ has not been affected by his illness.

It was learned that Caruso still has a fever which is occasioning some concern. He called for several books which he intended reading but when they were produced he found he was not equal to the effort. He contented himself with looking at the pictures. He eats fairly well.

It is the plan of the tenor's physicians to have him sail for Europe by about the end of March.

HARDING-WILSON CONFERENCE PROBABLE

Discussion of Peace Problems to Take Place After Inauguration

By International News Service.

St. Augustine, Fla., Feb. 24.—A meeting between President Harding and ex-President Wilson some time after March 4 in order to clear up some of the beclouded aspects of the Paris peace conference is regarded as not unlikely by the advisers of the new President.

While Mr. Harding has been and still is largely occupied with the formation of his Cabinet and with the numerous other matters incidental to his entrance into the presidency a week hence, he, nevertheless, has been following with keen interest developments in Washington. He has been particularly interested in the developments concerning the allied indebtedness to the United States, realizing that this problem will be one of the first to clear up.

MOVIE TITLE TEST FOR ALL READERS BEGINS SUNDAY

Know a movie title when you see one?
Suppose it was drawn, instead of printed?

If your answer to the above questions is yes, you are hereby invited to take part in the Movie Play Title Test, which will be inaugurated on Sunday by the Boston American in association with the Boston Sunday Advertiser.

Beginning in the next issue of the Boston Sunday Advertiser, the co-operating newspapers will print a series of sixty pictures without titles. Each picture will represent the name of a motion picture play. Readers will be asked to supply the missing titles. One thousand dollars will be paid to the reader sending in the largest number of correct titles.

The correct titles of yesterday's sample drawings are "Forty-five Minutes from Broadway," "Held by the Enemy," and "No. 17." In today's Boston American you will find three more sample drawings. These are for "home exercise." They are NOT part of the Test. The first Test picture will be printed on the coming Sunday, in the Boston Sunday Advertiser.

One thousand dollars, as has been said, will be paid to the reader who makes the highest score—sends in the largest percentage of correct titles—in the Movie Play Title Test.

But the First Award will not be the only one worth working for. There will be others of $750, $500, $400, $300, $200, $150, $100 and $50. There will be 210 lesser awards, the whole amounting to $5,000. The full list:

ONE FIRST AWARD	$1,000
ONE SECOND AWARD	750
ONE THIRD AWARD	500
ONE FOURTH AWARD	400
ONE FIFTH AWARD	300
ONE SIXTH AWARD	200
ONE SEVENTH AWARD	150
ONE EIGHTH AWARD	100
ONE NINTH AWARD	50
100 AWARDS OF $10 EACH	1,000
110 AWARDS OF $5 EACH	550

HELPED BY LIST.

Participants in the new Test will be helped by the daily printing of motion picture play titles. The correct name of each and every Title Test picture will be found among the listed titles. Readers will have before them, therefore, not only the Title Test picture but a long list of movie play titles. Somewhere in this list will be the correct name of the current picture.

Q.—Could anything be easier?

A.—Yes!

Many things are easier. The new Test will call for the best New England has in mental alertness. Everybody is invited to come in—men, women, children—and there will be no charge of any kind for taking part.

It may help to print, now, the titles of all the sample pictures which have appeared. They will be found in the following list, which also contains the names of many other movie plays:

Forty-Five Minutes from Broadway
Held by the Enemy
Peaceful Valley
Beautifully Trimmed
The Restless Sex
White Youth
Nothing But the Truth
No. 17
Hearts Up
Tiger True
The Right to Love
The Village Sleuth
Lady Rose's Daughter
Deep Waters
Held by the Enemy
A Full House
Flying Pat
Life of the Party
Heliotrope
Inside the Cup
The Passionate Pilgrim
Brewster's Millions
The Slim Princess
Stop Thief!
The Devil
Curtain
Civilian Clothes
Valley of the Giants
Miracle Man
It Pays to Advertise
Someone in the House
The Price of Redemption
His Lady Friend
Outside the Law
Lady Rose's Daughter
Over the Hill
Buried Treasure
If I Were King
The Tramp
Devil's Pass Key
La, La, Lucille
Pink Tights
Overland Red
Dead Men Tell No Tales
Officer 666
Suds
Broken Blossoms
Twin Beds
Shoulder Arms!
39 East
Blind Wives
The Fortune Hunter
Fair and Warmer
Nothing But the Truth
Hold Your Horses!
Going Some
Copperhead
Midsummer Madness
What's Your Hurry?

Except that in the Test things will be done on a larger scale, the above List of Titles and today's sample pictures will give you a good idea of the lines along which the $5,000 Movie Play Title Test will be conducted. Beginning on Sunday, however, there will be but one Test Picture every day and the List of Titles will be considerably longer.

Scores of motion picture theatres throughout New England will co-operate with the Boston American and the Boston Sunday Advertiser by flashing the Test Drawing on their screens every day from the beginning of the Test until the end. The names of these co-operating theatres will be printed daily. Watch for this theatre list and select your theatre.

And now, a line or two about the recent Movie Player Identity Test. The latest bulletin from Player Test Headquarters places the number of parcels received at NOT LESS THAN 40,000!

MAY BE 50,000.

The director says he will not be surprised if the number goes as high as 50,000. Supposing it to remain at 40,000, however, and counting 120 pictures to the bundle, there are 4,800,000 identifications to check up! If the checkers complete their task in a month, or five weeks, we shall have cause for rejoicing.

Keeping in mind the fact that the first necessity is ACCURACY, the counters and checkers have been directed to work with all possible speed. Five thousand dollars will be paid to the 219 participants who come through with the largest percentages of correct identifications and the money will be paid over as soon as the tally has been completed. Names of the successful and a complete list of the correct identifications will be printed at the same time.

Meanwhile, get ready for the Movie Play TITLE TEST!

The awards—219—number exactly the same.

Their total value—$5,000 — is the same.

It starts next Sunday, in the Boston Sunday Advertiser, and — unless you fairly hanker for a Blue Sunday—speak to the newsdealer about it today. No necessity for a long speech!

"I MUST have the Boston Sunday Advertiser!"

FIRST DISPOSAL OF SEIZED RUM IS ORDERED

Court Decrees Part of It Be Sold at $2.20 a Gallon; Remainder to Be Given Away

The first Federal court action here relative to disposing of liquor seized for violation of the National Prohibition Act, has just been taken by Judge Morton of the United States District Court, who has ordered that the Glynn Brothers' eighteen barrels of whiskey, seized last August, be disposed of in three ways.

Judge Morton, in taking this initial action, orders that this liquor, which at first was reported to have been stolen from the Glynns' wholesale liquor establishment at No. 266 Washington street, Brighton, be given away to United States institutions or sold at auction to permit holders in a delivery and sale order, signed by the justice under a provision of the National Prohibition Act.

In accordance with Judge Morton's order two barrels of the eighteen barrels of Glenmore whiskey will be delivered to the chief medical officer, first corps headquarters, U. S. Army, this city, and two barrels will be sent to the chief medical officer of the U. S. Public Health Service at Boston, the liquor in both cases to be used for medical purposes.

The remaining liquor, according to the court's order is to be sold by the U. S. marshal, first to Massachusetts public, municipal and charitable hospitals and institutions permitted to purchase liquor for medical, mechanical or scientific uses at the special price of $2.20 per gallon.

Should a son right his father's wrongs? Suppose you discovered the fortune your father left you belonged to another, would you—like Sir Arthur—pass on the title to a whole village for the honor of the family? Would you, like Martin Irving, live, in distress, with his black joke of being right?

Sightless, she awakened—in the post of Laird, outlawed bootlegger. One hand pulled away her hat—her great-coat—long coppery fingers tore away her waist. Then came her beseeching cry. How far could that cry go back? Could it awaken the sleeping ghosts of a degraded man's youth? Does the call of one's race ever die? Arthur Stringer gives his answer in Snow-Blind.

Have Bread Filled with Raisins
For Flavor and for Health

A bread is made that's full of raisins, luscious nuggets of sun-cured California fruit, Nature's own confections.

It's called Sun-Maid Raisin Bread.

First-class bakers make it, and supply it to retailers, or you can bake it at home according to the recipe at the right. Serve such bread because it's real raisin bread and because it's healthful.

Raisins are rich in natural iron content. And natural iron in the blood makes ruddy, rosy cheeks. Rosy cheeks make pretty women prettier.

One needs but little iron daily but that need is vitally important. Eat raisins daily and be sure you're getting all the iron you need.

SUN-MAID RAISINS

Sun-Maid Raisin Bread is made with Sun-Maid Raisins, California's best.

Use these raisins for all home cooking purposes. In pies, cakes, puddings, salads, rolls, etc.

Plump, tender, juicy raisins, made from the finest table grapes. Packed in California in a great, new, immaculate plant.

Clean, sweet, wholesome American raisins—the kind you know are good.

Three varieties: Sun-Maid Seeded (seeds removed); Sun-Maid Seedless (grown without seeds); Sun-Maid Clusters (on the stem). All dealers. Insist upon the Sun-Maid brand.

2 GIRLS CALLED IN SPRINGFIELD POLICE PROBE

They Were Formerly Employed in Home of Captain of Detectives Quilty

Springfield, Feb. 24.—Two young girls, formerly employed as domestics in the home of Captain of Detectives Frank W. Quilty, will be summoned as witnesses before the special committee of the City Council, now investigating alleged irregularities in the police department. This was learned today when the committee resumed its sessions behind closed doors.

One of the girls is Marie Demars, at present an inmate of the House of the Good Shepherd. The other is an inmate of the Lancaster Industrial School.

Policewoman H. Elizabeth O'Connor, Patrolman Charles J. Long and Lieutenant of Detectives M. J. Meade, were the witnesses heard yesterday, after the special committee had flatly refused to grant the personal request of the police commissioners to be allowed to be present at the hearing.

Among the others who testified at the session yesterday were Roger W. Nevins, superintendent of a local store; D. V. Wallace, former Police Commissioner J. M. Gill and Attorney William J. Greenfield. The identity of another witness was kept secret by the committee.

All the testimony given at the hearing was held a profound secret, although it is known that Patrolman Long has been counted as one of the dissatisfied officers and is alleged to have been prominent in circulating reports of doubtful actions within the department.

Asked by the committee not to discuss the investigation, members of the police commission today announced that they had refused.

"We told them to go to the devil," is the way one of the commissioners expressed the body's reply to the request.

This is the second week of the probe, but so far as is known no charge has been laid against any police officer.

FLEE FIRE

Mrs. John C. Spry and, at top, Miss Ruth Franklin, actress and model.

The credit for arousing the occupants of the apartment house at No. 144 Hemenway street, Back Bay, when fire of undetermined cause started in the basement, was given to Mrs. John C. Spry of Suite 1.

Mrs. Spry shouted the news to a man in the street, who turned in an alarm, and then informed other residents of the building, as well as those in the adjoining structure at No. 144. Among these was Miss Ruth Franklin, actress and model, who lived with her mother, Mrs. Anna G. Franklin in suite 3. Both fled to the street ahead of the smoke which billowed through the building.

JAIL TERM FOR ALLEGED CHECK DEFRAUDER

Robert Reinhart, 50, of New York Appeals Sentence on Larceny Charge

Robert Reinhart, fifty years old, claiming to live at No. 433 West End avenue, New York, found guilty of larceny by means of a worthless check, and sentenced by Judge Murray in the Municipal Court to six months, has appealed and furnished $100 cash bail for appearance in the Superior Court.

Reinhart was convicted of collecting $100 from the S. Vorenberg Clothing Company on a check drawn on the Wells Fargo Nevada Bank of San Francisco.

There were no funds to meet the check.

Reinhart had been employed as an advertising man by the clothing firm but a few days previous to the making of the worthless check.

He was arrested by Special Officers Manning and Bresnahan of the City Hall avenue police station on February 9.

Thomas Quits Socialists

Paris, Feb. 24.—Albert Thomas, former minister of armaments and director of the International Labor Bureau of the League of Nations, announced today that he will quit the Socialist party.

JEWS DON'T FEAR FORD, COMMITTEE IS TOLD

"We do not fear Henry Ford and his Dearborn Independent," declared Mendel N. Fisher at a meeting of the committee of Blue Hill Avenue Synagogue, Roxbury, conducting a campaign for 100 new members. "Israel has survived while its enemies have vanished, even from the pages of history." Those in charge of the drive for new members are Rabbi A. B. Gold, Mr. Fisher and Miss Annabelle Bieman.

Meat
—then and now

THE meat peddler of the old days, who killed his own live stock and then sold the meat from the tail of a cart, is gone from our larger towns and cities. He was a pioneer and did good service but he couldn't keep up with his job. Crude methods had to give way to new ideas in sanitation and distribution.

Concentration of population drove the peddler and his wagon out and brought the modern packing industry and the neighborhood retailer in his place.

And the modern packing business means this:

That near the farms and ranches, the centers of live stock production, are packing plants that assemble and manufacture the meat products you use.

That swift and sanitary refrigerator cars carry your meat from these packing plants to every part of the country.

Dealers in towns and villages are supplied directly and regularly from these refrigerator cars.

And in cities the refrigerator car is unloaded into branch houses, chilled and sanitary, from which deliveries are made to your meat shop. And all the time the meat is kept so chilled that deterioration is prevented.

Swift & Company's plants and branches are co-ordinated, interchanging supply and supporting each other, when necessary, so that no section of the country may ever lack its daily meat.

HOW TO DARKEN GRAY HAIR

A Cincinnati Barber Tells How to Make a Remedy for Gray Hair.

A well known resident of Cincinnati, Ohio, who has been a barber for more than forty years, recently made the following statement:

"Anyone can prepare a simple mixture at home, at very little cost, that will darken gray hair, and make it soft and glossy. To a half-pint of water add 1 ounce bay rum, a small box of Barbo Compound and ¼ ounce glycerine. These ingredients can be bought at any drug store at very little cost. Apply to the hair twice a week until the desired shade is obtained. This will make a gray-haired person look twenty years younger. It is easy to use, does not color the most delicate scalp, is not sticky or greasy and does not rub off."

TODAY'S BEAUTY HELP

We find you can bring out the beauty of your hair to its very best advantage by washing it with canthrox. It makes a very simple, inexpensive shampoo, which cleanses the hair and scalp thoroughly of all the dandruff, dirt and excess oil, leaving a wonderfully clean, wholesome feeling. After its use, you will find that the hair dries quickly and evenly, is never streaked in appearance and is always bright, soft and fluffy; so fluffy, in fact, that it looks more abundant than it is, and so soft that arranging it becomes a pleasure. Just use a teaspoonful of canthrox, which you can get from any good druggist, dissolve it in a cup of hot water; this makes a full cup of shampoo liquid, enough so it is easy to apply it to all the hair instead of just the top of the head.

GREAT FOR ECZEMA AND OLD SORES

"Remember, I stand back of every box. Every druggist guarantees to refund the purchase price if Peterson's Ointment doesn't do all I claim.

"I guarantee it for eczema, old sores, running sores, salt rheum, ulcers, sore nipples, broken breasts, itching skin, skin diseases, blind, bleeding and itching piles, as well as for chafing, burns, scalds, cuts, bruises and sunburn."

"I had 30 running sores on my leg for 11 years, was in three different hospitals. Amputation was advised. Skin grafting was tried. I was cured by using Peterson's Ointment."—Mrs. F. E. Root, 287 Michigan Avenue, Buffalo, N. Y. Mail orders filled by Peterson Ointment Co., Inc., Buffalo, N. Y.—Advertisement.

Simple Way to Take Off Fat

There can be nothing simpler than taking a convenient little tablet four times each day until your weight is reduced to normal. That's all—just purchase a case of Marmola Prescription Tablets from your druggist (or if you prefer, send one dollar to Marmola Co., 4612 Woodward Ave., Detroit, Mich.) and follow directions. No dieting, no exercise. Eat what you want—be as lazy as you like and keep on getting slimmer. And the best part of Marmola Prescription Tablets is their harmlessness. That is your absolute safeguard.—Advertisement.

Just One Application and the Hairs Vanish

(Modes of Today)

A harmless, yet very effective, treatment is here given for the quick removal of hairy growths: Mix enough powdered delatone and water to cover the undesirable hairs, apply paste and after 2 or 3 minutes remove, wash the skin and the hairs have vanished. One application usually is sufficient, but to be certain of results, buy the delatone in an original package. Mix fresh as wanted.—Advertisement.

NANCE O'NEIL'S ROLE IS HEAVY STRAIN ON HER

Star of "Passion Flower" Believes in "Living" Part She Portrays in Play

By FRED J. McISAAC.

It was about five minutes before the end of "The Passion Flower," that I passed through the Plymouth Theatre with the intention of talking to Nance O'Neil.

"The Passion Flower," as you know if you have seen it, is a steady crescendo, working up to a wild and blood - curdling climax. Sitting through the play you don't realize just what an uproar is taking place at the very end of the play, but coming in from the street, I got the full force of it.

Miss O'Neil had just discovered her daughter in the arms of her stepfather, Miss O'Neil's husband in the play, and off the boards, for that matter. She begins her denunciation.

HAS POWERFUL VOICE.

Oh, boy, what a voice that woman owns. It rolled forth like a mighty organ peal—never a screech—but a tremendous sonorous boom. Take all the railroad station announcers in the country and let them bellow together, and alongside of Miss O'Neil they would sound like a record of Van and Schenck, with the shutters of the phonograph closed.

By the time I got back stage the mob outside the cabin was at work. All the actors who were not on the stage were walking up and down, sitting down or standing still, yelling their heads off. And just as I was sneaking across the stage behind the back drop, bang went a gun and Nance was a dead woman.

In a few minutes the curtain rumbled down, the play was over, and Miss O'Neil staggered off, completely exhausted, with tears streaming down her cheeks, her chest heaving and her legs hardly able to carry her.

"Wait till I get my breath," she panted, leading the way into her dressing room. "I'll be all right in a minute."

"It's a hard life you lead," I ventured as the actress wiped away the real tears and managed a smile.

"REELS" ROLE HARD.

"It's a wonderful play," she declared. "I live it as I have never lived a part before. I actually am that woman during the progress of the play. I love and suffer with her."

"I should think it would kill you. How can an emotional actress go on day after day experiencing such emotions and avoid a complete breaddown?"

"It's our profession," explained Miss O'Neil. "I think we must have two selves—a subjective and objective self. One of these personalities goes through every possible emotion and the other self stands dispassionately by and watches how it is done.

"Thus in my biggest and most heartrending moment I know just where I am standing, just what my gestures are, all about my technique. And yet I am really feeling the role as hard as I can feel.

"There are two schools regarding a role. Coquelin, the great Frenchman, said that a great actor did not feel and live a part, but only simulated the emotions of it, remaining cool and unmoved all the while. Irving maintained that you had to live and feel a role. In my opinion they were both right. An actor can actually live a part and at the same time be outside it. It must be so or we couldn't stand it."

HATED TO PLAY NANCY.

"Don't you ever wake up in the middle of the night fearing that some of the terrible things you suffer during the plays you have been appearing in have actually happened to you?"

Miss O'Neil laughed. "When I was younger some of the roles would occasionally scare me. I hated to play Nancy Sykes in 'Oliver Twist.' I was actually afraid to go on sometimes, the thing would get me so. But ordinarily we do not take our roles to sleep with us.

"David Belasco once said to me: 'No good actor is normal,' and I am sure we are none of us normal or we wouldn't be acting, or playing heavy emotional roles, anyway. I have often wished to see how it felt to play a light comedy part, but nature obviously did not intend me for a comedienne. I get my joy out of performing the roles for which I am fitted in the most artistic and workmanship manner that I possibly can."

HANAN'S WIDOW 'BROKE'; PETITIONS FOR $100,000

New York, Feb. 24.—In a petition to Surrogate Foley, Mrs. Ethel Hanan Taylor, widow of Alfred P. Hanan, wealthy shoe manufacturer, asked that she be given $100,000 at once from the estate of her husband. She declares that she has been forced to sell furniture, furnishings and automobiles left by her husband to meet her personal expenses. Her present husband, she says, is barely earning a living. He is in the export business and they live at Cannes, France.

MASTER HOTEL THIEF BELIEVED IN TOILS

New York, Feb. 24. — The long sought "man with the master key," who is believed to have committed a long string of hotel robberies which cost many hotel guests great losses, is thought to be in custody. William Baker, young and well dressed, was arrested at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel after a gun fight. He was held in $25,000 bail by Magistrate Rosenblatt, and in $1,000 each on two other charges.

STACEY DEFIES SAUGUS SCHOOL BOARD ORDER

Boy Suspended for Striking Teacher Fails to Appear at Principal's Office

The Saugus school row took a new slant today when it became known that George Stacey, the fifteen-year-old son of Oliver S. Stacey, of No. 12 Putnam street, Cliftondale, had not appeared in the office of Miss Lucie Norris, principal of the Saugus High School, as ordered.

Stacey is the pupil who is alleged to have struck his teacher, Miss Elizabeth K. Paine, and was suspended by order of the school board last Friday. Since that time he has been assigned to a seat and desk in the principal's office, much against his own and his parents' will.

The case came up before the school board again last night, when Oliver Stacey, father of the youngster, appeared with a demand that the case against his son be reopened to ascertain what truth there is in his belief that the whole affair grew out of what he calls the "teacher's animosity towards the pupil."

On the advice of Town Counselor Ludden, the board voted that, the Stacey case had been definitely closed and refused to reopen it.

MAIL AVIATOR CROSSES U. S. IN 33 HOURS

Old Flight Record From Coast to New York Cut in Halves

By Universal Service.

New York, Feb. 24.—The time of thirty-three hours and twenty minutes for the delivery of aerial mail from San Francisco in New York was hung up when Pilot E. M. Allison, completing the last leg of the journey from the coast city, landed at Hazelhurst Field, L. I., at 4:50 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

He carried six pouches of mail. A seventh pouch was brought in fifteen minutes after Allison's landing by Pilot William C. Hopson, who, in addition, carried seven pouches of regular mail.

OLD RECORD CUT IN HALVES.

Both fliers used standard De Haviland planes. The last leg of the journey from Cleveland to New York occupied 3 hours and 47 minutes. The mail in eighteen pouches left San Francisco at 4:30 coast time, Tuesday morning.

The new time, it was declared at Haselhurst Field, cuts the old time of mail delivery from the coast in half. The flight was the first experiment in night and day flying on the transcontinental air route. The best previous time for the trip was seventy-nine hours and forty-four minutes. The pilots, however, flew in the day time only.

ONE FLIER IS KILLED.

Jack Knight made the longest individual leg of the trip, flying the 1,200 miles through the night, from Cheyenne to Chicago, arriving at Chicago at 8:40 yesterday morning.

Twenty minutes later another pilot, J. G. Webster, was in the air with the mail bound for Cleveland.

One pilot, Captain William E. Lewis, was killed on the first lap of the journey at Elko, Nev., when his machine went down in a spin Tuesday.

It was announced that the drive starts with $162,-837 in advance subscriptions from the Methodist Episcopal churches of Greater Boston.

The members of the executive committee are: Alfred L. Aiken, John K. Allen, Alfred H. Avery, Everett C. Benton, Horace A. Carter, Calvert Crary, Ernest B. Dane, Allen C. Emery, C. H. J. Kimball, Walter G. Resor, William T. Rich, Graydon Stetson and Vernon R. Swett.

LABOR OPPOSES JAMES J. DAVIS IN CABINET

Union Heads Move to Bar Possible Appointment as Unrepresentative

Washington, Feb. 24. — Organised labor is making a determined eleventh-hour effort to swerve President-elect Harding from his apparent decision to appoint James J. Davis of Pittsburgh, Secretary of Labor.

It was learned from members of the labor group in the House today that a drive is being made on the President-elect to induce him to name a man actively identified with the union movement. The objection urged against Mr. Davis is that he does not represent labor.

No particular union candidate for the post has been selected, it was stated, but Mr. Harding has been advised that any one of the several union leaders heretofore suggested would be entirely satisfactory. This list includes Representative John I. Nolan of California; W. N. Doak, T. V. O'Connor and James Duncan.

Representative William J. Burke of Pittsburgh, one of the most active labor men in Congress, said he had written a letter to this effect to the President-elect, and he understood the heads of the various unions and brotherhoods had forwarded similar communications.

WORK GETTING BETTER IN LAWRENCE MILLS

Lawrence, Feb. 24.—Announcement is made that the Uswoco Mill, which has been closed for weeks is resuming activities on a 25 per cent capacity. Each department is now working and several hundred of the mill quota are enjoying a full week's work. The layoff of mill workers here is ending and gradually the larger mill plants are starting up. It is probable that before the end of the month hundreds who are now idle will be working, according to mill men who are growing optimistic at the prospect.

Use Cocoanut Oil For Washing Hair

If you want to keep your hair in good condition, be careful what you wash it with.

Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and is very harmful. Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo (which is pure and entirely greaseless), is much better than anything else you can use for shampooing, as this can't possibly injure the hair.

Simply moisten your hair with water and rub it in. One or two teaspoonsful of Mulsified will make an abundance of rich, creamy lather, and cleanses the hair and scalp thoroughly. The lather rinses out easily, and removes every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves it fine and silky, bright, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo at most any drug store. It is very cheap, and a few ounces is enough to last everyone in the family for months. Be sure your druggist gives you Mulsified.—Advertisement.

"How I Became Famous For My Coffee"

My husband and I have always been lovers of coffee—the best coffee. But for years I thought that only at fine restaurants and hotels could one enjoy really delicious coffee. Now I know better because we use La Touraine in our home.

Found Real Coffee At Last

At last, I have coffee that my friends, as well as my family, never cease to praise—La Touraine, "The Coffee of Good Taste." I have found too, that many of my acquaintances, who, like myself, have gladly paid any price to get good coffee, prefer La Touraine, knowing it will always be as full of rich coffee-flavor as coffee can be.

A Distinctive Thing in Flavor

So much richer is La Touraine, so much more body and snap has the flavor, that it almost seems you are trying something entirely new in coffee. Of course, this taste is just the genuine coffee flavor we all enjoy so much, and it is simply due to the high grade kinds of coffee in the blend, and the extreme care with which La Touraine is produced.

The Famous Formula Guards the Quality

The La Touraine Formula is the real reason for the great popularity of La Touraine. It is a fixed rule of coffee production, to which every department of the factory must rigidly conform. According to the formula the finest kinds of coffee are used. These are carefully selected for type from the world's coffee output, and blended together in a way which insures the distinctive flavor of La Touraine. Experienced roasting men supervise the roasters in which the beans are brought to just the degree of color and aroma that gives the utmost goodness in the cup.

Insist on the La Touraine Package

Do not accept La Touraine unless it is in the La Touraine package. Buy it in the package marked "bean" and have your grocer grind it fresh for you. You will then get the richest flavor in your cup.

Mr. Quinby Asks You to Try This Coffee Test

I have spent the greater part of twenty years trying to produce the finest possible cup of coffee. La Touraine, produced according to the La Touraine Formula, is the result, which thousands of experiments have failed to improve upon. My reward for all this effort is that nearly everyone who tries La Touraine the first time, continues to use it. So, my problem is simply to get more people to try La Touraine once. La Touraine itself will do the rest. I ask you to make this test: get a package of La Touraine and serve it to your family. Don't tell them what brand it is. If they do not think it is the finest coffee they ever tasted, return the unused coffee to your grocer and he will refund your money for the full pound. Also ask your grocer for our booklet "How I Make Perfect Coffee," or if he can't supply you write to us direct. Follow the rules and thereby get 100% flavor and coffee-satisfaction.

"FORD A PATHETIC FIGURE," SAYS BERNSTEIN

PEACE PARTY BLUNDERS MADE IT A WAR PARTY, HE SAYS

"All sensible people are for peace, but not all the people who are for peace are sensible.

"Henry Ford's secret departure from Christiania made his expedition still more ridiculous. His expedition has really hindered the idea of peace, for now people will only smile when peace is mentioned."

This was the great pacifist's estimate of Henry Ford and his peace expedition.

Now Henry Ford, defending his anti-Semitic agitation, explains that it is but a part of his peace campaign.

"It is my desire to bring about world peace," he says. "My life is devoted to peace. Peace is the real purpose behind this educational campaign."

Since Henry Ford's anti-Jewish propaganda is a continuation of his peace expedition, it will be interesting to sketch a few outstanding incidents connected with the farcical historic cruise.

ONE OF FORD'S GUESTS.

I was one of Mr. Ford's guests on his peace ship and I had occasion to talk with him during the voyage across the Atlantic. He impressed me then as a rather sincere, earnest man, with noble impulses, but simpleminded and ignorant to an amazing degree. In my conversations with him on board the peace ship I noticed that though he talked of peace, his mind always reverted to his motor and to his tractor which he was eager to launch in Russia. He displayed an astounding lack of knowledge of conditions in Europe. In fact, he seemed to know less than a normal ten-year-old schoolboy about the old world he set out to save.

When I joined the Ford peace party I expressed my faith in the idea of advertising peace in the neutral countries. I believed that Henry Ford had a definite plan of action, that he had certain assurances for authoritative quarters that such a peace expedition might prove helpful.

IRRESPONSIBLE ADVENTURE.

Within a few days after our departure some of us began to realize that the whole affair was a bold piece of irresponsible adventure. The curious collection of well-meaning, naive reformers and faddists of all kinds and all ages—the women, men and children of the Ford peace party, were whipped into line by a strange, unseen hand from behind the scenes. Those who would not be whipped into line were regarded as "rebels," while those who would be servile were to be rewarded, and a number of the "reformers" preferred to be servile.

Henry Ford was the most pathetic figure among a crowd of pathetic figures. The blunders made by the Ford peace party turned it into a war party. It was ridiculed in America, in England it was treated with contempt, in France it was regarded with disgust. And in Austria and Germany, where it was watched silently for a time in the hope that it might after all prove a medium for starting peace negotiations, it was also mocked as soon as its impotency and folly became apparent. In the neutral countries it failed to arouse even genuine curiosity.

ALL NATIONS REPRESENTED.

I had several talks with Henry Ford. He explained to me that among the thousands of men working in his shops practically all nations were represented, that those working people were relatives of the men in the trenches, that those people felt the horrors of the war keenly and that when the heart-rending cries of the men in the trenches reached the workmen, they also reached him. So he decided to get the boys out of the trenches by Christmas.

I recall how Henry Ford praised his Jewish workmen and pointed out that he could not understand why there should be any discrimination against Jews anywhere.

I also recall how Madame Rosika Schwimmer, said to be a Hungarian Jewess, who inspired the Ford expedition, when cross-examined by some of the keener newspaper men on the peace ship, related details of how she had convinced the automobile manufacturer and inspired him to undertake the peace mission.

INTRODUCED BY JANE ADDAMS.

She said that she was introduced to him by Jane Addams and other prominent American women, and that she talked to him for an hour about the horrors of the war. She then informed him that, together with other representative women of the woman's peace conference, held in Holland, she had visited a number of statesmen, premiers, foreign ministers and ambassadors and that these statesmen had furnished her documents, showing that they were all eager for a peace conference of the neutral nations, and such a peace expedition as she proposed would crystallize peace sentiment as nothing else could.

She said that she then offered to show him some of these documents, but he declined to look at them, saying that he needed no further proof and that he would devote his life and his fortune to the cause of peace.

Mr. Ford believed everything the woman told him. She told him that the Kings of Europe would welcome him with open arms upon his arrival on the other side. And so Henry Ford was tempted.

TO IMPRESS EUROPE.

On the boat the Ford staff was busy preparing a "Who's Who" for publication immediately on reaching Christiania in order to impress Europe. Henry Ford's official biography was rewritten several times. In one edition of "Who's Who on the Peace Ship," Henry was described as a "Publicist."

Rosika Schwimmer sent wireless messages from the peace ship to the American Minister in Norway, Mr. Schmedemann, asking him to arrange an audience for Ford with the King of Norway. Henry Ford was expecting a royal reception in Europe. But on reaching the shores of cold Norway, he discovered that the American government had instructed its representatives abroad to have nothing to do with the Ford expedition.

He also learned to his keen disappointment that the King would not receive him. In fact, a statement was published in the Norwegian press to the effect that the King would not see Mr. Ford and that the government would ignore the expedition. The "Peacemaker" was disillusioned and sick at heart.

RECEPTION BY STUDENTS.

A reception to the peace party by the students of the Christiania University was arranged with great difficulty. Mr. Ford had to pay for the dinner in addition to the contribution he was asked to make to the University building fund.

It was then that Henry Ford suddenly decided to abandon the sinking peace ship. Without any explanation, without any apology to the men and the women he had invited to accompany him on the peace expedition, he fled secretly, like a coward, returning home while the headless expedition proceeded to Stockholm. He thus made his expedition even more hopeless and ridiculous than it was before.

Desperate appeals with offers of large sums were sent by Mr. Gaston Plantiff, Mr. Ford's manager, to Mr. Bryan and Mr. Taft, asking them to come and save the collapsing expedition by merely delivering lectures on peace, but they declined.

FORD BECAME ILL.

The Rev. Dr. Aked, who was also a member of the expedition, has expressed the belief that Mr. Ford's anti-Semitism is due to his having been duped by Rosika Schwimmer, who is said to be a Hungarian Jewess.

"When Ford found that he had been tricked and deceived," says Dr. Aked, "when he found himself a butt and a dupe, he became ill and left the expedition. I suggest now that his blood has been poisoned against the Jewish race by this wretched experience. Agreed, it is narrow-minded and unphilosophical to ascribe to a race the defects of an individual.

"But nobody has ever accused Mr. Ford of being a philosopher. Perhaps it is not anti-Semitism at all. Perhaps it is—Rosika Schwimmer."

Now Henry Ford, the "Publicist," has launched a campaign of anti-Semitic propaganda in this country, basing his charges upon forged documents, upon German and Russian inventions. Another "Rosika Schwimmer" must have talked to Mr. Ford and explained to him in an hour, or in five minutes, the cause of the world unrest, the cause of war and the menace of the so-called International Jew, responsible for all the ills that have befallen the world.

Rosika Schwimmer, the Hungarian Jewess, whatever her motives may have been, so induced him to start his peace crusade. When it failed, he became embittered. His talk of human kindness turned sour. Now some anti-Semitic "Rosika Schwimmer," some Prussian or Russian anti-Jewish schemers have apparently induced Mr. Ford to start a crusade against the Jews, restoring to methods of the refined savage.

Who knows? Perhaps someone in the near future will convince the learned Mr. Ford that a God-appointed German Kaiser or Russian Tsar is needed in the United States instead of a President, and he may undertake and finance an impassioned crusade against American institutions and against our present form of government.

Upon my return from Europe several months ago I noticed the anti-Jewish article in Henry Ford's weekly. I sent him the following telegram:

"My attention was called to articles denouncing the Jews, published in the Dearborn Independent, with which you are identified.

"The articles in question are so malicious, filled with distortions of the truth, that I cannot imagine you sanctioned their publication. During my recent travels I have convinced myself that there is a huge conspiracy against the Jewish people, cunningly organized, to discredit them everywhere as the Tsar's government attempted through the notorious Beilis affair, but failed shamefully. I am asked to comment on your Dearborn Independent articles. Before doing so I should like to have a statement from you whom I always regarded as a broad-minded, warm-hearted, humanitarian American."

GETS SHORT ANSWER.

In answer to this I received the following telegram from the Dearborn Independent:

"We have your telegram to Mr. Ford. Its contents clearly indicate that you have reached your conclusions, and that any further comment we have to express in connection therewith would not influence your biased judgment thereon."

Mr. Louis Marshall, president of the American Jewish Committee, one of the greatest authorities on Constitutional law in the United States, sent Mr. Ford the following telegram, in June, 1920:

"In the issues of May 22 and 29 of the Dearborn Independent, which is understood to be your property or under your control, there have appeared two articles which are disseminating anti-Semitism in its most insidious and pernicious form. The statements which they contain are palpable fabrications and the insinuations with which they abound are the emanations of hatred and prejudice.

SPARED INSULT.

"They constitute a libel upon an entire people who had hoped that at least in America they might be spared the insult, the humiliation and the obloquy which these articles are scattering throughout the land and which are echoes from the dark Middle Ages.

"Your agencies are said to be engaged in circulating this mischief-breeding sheet. On behalf of my brethren I ask you from whom we had believed that justice might be expected, whether these offensive articles have your sanction, whether further publications of this nature are to be continued and whether you shall remain silent when your failure to disavow them will be regarded by the general public as an endorsement of them. Three million of deeply wounded Americans are awaiting your answer."

To this dignified request came the following telegraphic answer, from The Dearborn Independent:

"We regret the words in which you have seen fit to characterize The Dearborn Independent articles. Your terms "insidious," "fabrications," "insinuations," "pernicious," "hatred," "prejudice," "libel," "insult," "humiliation," "obloquy," "mischief-making," we resent and deny. Your rhetoric is that of a Bolshevik orator. You mistake our intention.

"You misrepresent the tone of our articles. You evidently much mistake the persons whom you are addressing. Incidentally you cruelly overwork your most useful term, which is "anti-Semitism." These articles shall continue and we hope you will continue to read them, and when you have attained a more tolerable state of mind we shall be glad to discuss them with you."

With the obstinacy of ignorant fanaticism, "the "Peacemaker" of Detroit has since continued to wage war against the Jews.

In my previous article I have shown how Henry Ford, through the medium of a fabricated "interview" with Prince Bismarck, endeavored to poison American public opinion with the wildest concoctions of Prussian anti-Semites. In my next article I shall describe the dark forces of the Russian Black Hundreds that have pitched their tents in this country, and whose nefarious task Henry Ford has made his own.

Henry Ford, whose "life is devoted to peace," is the dupe, the tool and the spokesman of the darkest evil forces of Europe that seek to breed confusion, unrest and violence.

Hapgood Tells Why Hoover Hesitates

By NORMAN HAPGOOD,

It happened that on the same day Hoover met a friend. "Harding wants to put me in the cabinet," he said, "but Penrose won't let him."

If Hoover decides to go in it will be for a set of [illegible] reasons. Knowing that he was being considered for the cabinet he has been annoyed by being kept out of the department for which he felt best fitted and also being made to look like a candidate.

A much deeper reason, however, for his hesitation to go in has been that he has doubted the wisdom of identifying himself with the administration until he knew in what direction it was likely to be headed.

The appointment of Hughes [illegible] Hoover or [illegible]

Davis Would Be Unwelcome to Labor

Until Hoover was asked [illegible] there was strong [illegible] Congressman [illegible] of California [illegible] would be the choice for the labor [illegible] Of course there are not [illegible] two men from California [illegible] In spite of the general belief [illegible] that Davis [illegible] It will be [illegible] Mr Harding will need their help.

A great deal is printed about Mr Davis's union card. As a matter of fact he was a union laborer for a short time in his youth and has had nothing to do with labor matters since. The real labor leaders [illegible] that if he is appointed not only will they be passed over, but a lot of [illegible] will be put over on them in the attempt to give the impression of representing union labor without actually doing it.

To return to the Hughes issue. The old guard consoles itself with [illegible] about his lasting only a few months and then going on the Supreme Court bench. I can inform them that they are indulging in a dream. No member of the Supreme Court has the slightest intention of resigning. Probably Mr Hughes would not accept anything less than the chief justiceship. The [illegible] therefore [illegible] of the cabinet [illegible] on the death of Chief Justice White.

THE BIG CROWD
THE RANK AND FILE OF PEOPLE—

Seldom have a chance given them to become part owners of a business:
—to have a voice in its management;
—to be able to buy stock at the beginning at the same price as everybody else;
—to share equally in the profits;
—to have their holdings of stock protected against the "pooling" and "selling out" so often engineered by the unscrupulous.

THE BIG CROWD
THE RANK AND FILE OF PEOPLE—

Have a chance now to become part owners of a business in which there is but one kind of stock offered to anybody—and that is common stock—and all who buy it must pay the same price for it—and no one man or group of men will be permitted to own control. Control will always remain in the hands of the rank and file.

THE BIG CROWD
THE RANK AND FILE OF PEOPLE—

To the number of several thousand—have already become owners of the common stock of this enterprise and they are satisfied, because they know the money they have paid into the treasury has been wisely spent in buying a site for a factory—in the building of a factory—now nearly completed—and in securing up-to-date equipment for the factory. Manufacturing of the product—a world-wide necessity—will begin very soon with orders in hand to keep going for several months.

THE MEN DIRECTING THIS ENTERPRISE ARE THEMSELVES OF
THE BIG CROWD
THE RANK AND FILE OF PEOPLE—

Who have put into it their time and money—and to show you that they are playing fair with their associate stockholders they jointly own less than one-tenth of the authorized issue of common stock. They expect, however, to be retained by the stockholders to manage the business because they are practical, experienced men and understand every angle of it, but they appreciate that they must make good, otherwise they know it is within the power of the present stockholders (let alone the number of additional stockholders who are joining them daily) to displace them—They will stand shoulder to shoulder with all stockholders and conduct the business as they are sure they wish it to be conducted, viz.: ably, honestly, profitably.

THESE MEN OF
THE BIG CROWD
THE RANK AND FILE OF PEOPLE—

Told you in this newspaper last week, over their own signatures, what they have accomplished thus far and what their plans are for the development of the business. Maybe you did not see, or if you did, maybe you did not take the time to read what they said. If you would like a copy of their announcement it will be mailed to you, together with other data which will give you full, interesting and valuable information about this enterprise, but please fill out the coupon at the bottom of this space, writing your name and address plainly.

THE BUSINESS IS THE MANUFACTURE OF TIRES
FOR AUTOMOBILES

Which, as you know, is one of the prime necessities of the present and will be all through time. The business is not an experiment, FOR THE TIRES TO BE MANUFACTURED AND SOLD ARE ALREADY ESTABLISHED AND THERE IS A DEMAND FOR THEM EXCEEDING THE SUPPLY. They are good tires, and because they are good and reliable they will always sell—just as there is always demand for a good, proven article in any line. The factory, now nearing completion in West Haven, Conn. (really a part of New Haven, although a separate and distinct community), has a capacity for 500 tires a day, necessitating the employment of 500 people. This production is practically assured, which means that a substantial dividend will be paid, besides setting aside a substantial sum for a surplus. The stock may be had on the basis of $10 the share, and since it is issued as of no par value, there is no reason why its value should not climb up steadily as the business thrives, which it is bound to do because it is devoted to making and selling a necessity.

You will find out how to make your money make more money for you in a legitimate, needed enterprise if you will fill out this coupon, which will bring you by mail some very convincing facts:

DUFRESNE DISPUTE QUESTION FOR CANADIAN HOCKEY HEADS

SKILTON AND TEAM STILL OUT

Shoe Trades May Be Unable to Compete in Big Cup Games

By CHARLES E. PARKER

So long as Raymie Skilton maintains the stand which led to his refusal to play a regularly scheduled game with the Aura Lees, all chance for him or the Shoe Trades hockey team to engage in league, Winsor Cup or intersectional games is lost, according to those well versed in hockey lore.

As the result of his refusal to play without Dufresne his team stands automatically suspended and will remain so until he requests the U. S. Amateur Hockey Association for a hearing on the suspension.

One of the essential requirements that will be made of Skilton at such a hearing will be a whole-souled agreement to abide by the laws governing amateur hockey, which agreement will necessitate the prompt dropping of Dufresne's name from the Shoe Trades roster.

There has been a tendency in some quarters to laud Skilton for his stand anent the Dufresne controversy, but there also is a large and growing number of local hockey fans who have anything but soft sweet words to say regarding it.

That stand cost nearly 3,000 persons the discomforts of a snow-bound journey to the Arena last Monday night and inflicted upon them the annoyance usually attendant upon waiting in long [illegible] lines to redeem their useless tickets.

It cost the Arena owners several thousands of dollars in money and expenses, [illegible] brought about the suspension of all members of the Shoe Trades team, and as the result of the latter, made necessary complete revisals of the local hockey schedule.

Bringing of Dufresne Here Cause of Trouble

All in all, it constituted the sorest blow ever dealt local hockey and strange as it may seem among those who are praising Skilton's stand are some who not so long ago condemned him for his apparently just demand of an expense guarantee sufficient to properly equip and maintain his team.

If the issues involved were purely local, or if Skilton's side of the case were the only side, or if the bulky Shoe Trades leader had unwittingly found his team in its predicament regarding Dufresne, such utterings as have transpired might have been justifiable.

But, because of an agreement between United States and Canadian hockey bodies, the Dufresne case, from its very inception, has been a case which only could be settled between Dufresne and Canadian amateur officials; also there are two sides to the case, and last but not least, Skilton invited Dufresne to Boston apparently knowing Dufresne was "in bad" with Canadian amateur organizations.

In short Skilton brought a Canadian controversy to Boston, and is and has been seeking to settle it to his satisfaction at the expense of Boston fandom and the management of the Boston Arena.

No Ruling Here in Player's Case

Skilton has clouded the local issue with contentions as regards Dufresne's amateur status. Whether Dufresne is an amateur or not does not enter the United States end of the argument.

Dufresne may be the most amateurish amateur in the well-known world but two Canadian organizations have ruled him otherwise, and prior to such rulings the U. S. A. H. A. entered an agreement with Canadian hockey associations whereby each bound itself to accept the ruling of the other as regards the status of players who had or did move from the jurisdiction of one to the jurisdiction of the other.

Consequently, so long as the U. S. A. H. A. keeps its pledge Dufresne will remain ineligible until he clears himself in Canada.

GREB ON HAND FOR BATTLE WITH SMITH

Have Met Three Times Without Either Having Decided Advantage

By JACK CONWAY.

Harry Greb, Pittsburgh light heavyweight, breezed into our fair city today to complete training for his ten round battle with Jeff Smith, which will be staged at Mechanics Building tomorrow night under the [illegible] of the Faneuil [illegible].

Boston and New England fans are eager to see how Greb shapes up when opposed by a man who is his equal in the way of boxing and fighting ability. These huskies have clashed three times in Pittsburgh and each mill was about even. The fact that 14,000 persons turned out for the last Greb-Smith tussle is proof positive that the men furnished plenty of action in their previous bouts.

Greb has gone big in his two Boston starts. He first walloped Captain Bob Roper and then stepped forth and gave Pal Reid a trouncing. Both of these men, however, lacked in ring experience and so naturally fell by the wayside when opposed by the Pittsburgh Dancing Master.

$7,500 Purse Hung Up by the Faneuil Club

The Faneuil Club set a new high water mark for local ring guarantees when it signed Greb and Smith. The boxers are assured of $7,500 and will be paid more if there is a big gate as each also has a percentage privilege.

General Manager Mahony announced today that there are still plenty of choice seats to be had. He has made arrangements for installing additional seats in Mechanics Building so that every fan who desires to take in this ring classic will have his wish gratified.

Johnny McGann is in charge of reservations at the Faneuil Club's office at Room E, No. 39 Court street.

SPORT EDITORIAL

If We Had Earless Fighters

An editorial of recent date tells about the recently developed "earless" sheep.

If we could only develop a breed of "earless" fighters we would do away with the "cauliflower" ear, which is the common mark of the fistic profession.

This is a disfigurement from which few fighters are immune. It is caused by a severe blow against the ear, which bends the cartilage over until it breaks like a closely folded playing card.

It might be supposed that clever men would avoid getting hit on the ears, but some of the cleverest men in the business, notably Freddy Welsh, former lightweight champion, and Mike Gibbons, the middleweight, have these ears.

"Earless" fighters would not be physically equipped to wear these battered signs, and it would be an uplift in the prize ring in the way of beauty, at least.

However, a great many fighters have only "cauliflower" ears to show for years of effort in the prize ring, after they get through with dallying along the primrose path, so perhaps it is just as well that we leave them some memento of their short days of fistic glory.

BUGS BAER'S COLUMN

ALMOST FILLED.

THE next Cabinet is almost full. Prominent citizens have said that they are willing to sacrifice themselves upon the altar of public [illegible]

THE Secretary of Wars and Foreign Loans has been picked and salted away. The Secretary of Misappropriations has been also notified of his [illegible] as one of the Cabinet, which is now one of the largest bodies of men in the world and growing with the speed of a comet and probably headed toward the same destination.

THE first Cabinet will probably be picked with the usual permanent intention of being temporary. Cabinet officers are always listed in Washington boarding houses as transients.

FIRST the President looks over a man's record. He picks out a gent who has never held any other job long, knowing that he will make an ideal Secretary of something in the Cabinet.

EACH Secretary is picked for life. He only lasts a week. But one week in Washington seems a lifetime.

THE next vacancy is Secretary of Profits, whose job will be to see that profiteers are limited to what they can grab. Then there is the Sec. of the Lobby, who must see that the bribe offering lobbyist gets [illegible]

THIS is as important a job as any [illegible] lobbyist who [illegible] into Washington tonight among the lawmakers by offering them money. The Secretary of Lobbying was [illegible] posed to suffer all this annoyance personally.

ALTHOUGH you would never have known it during Woody's term in and out of Washington, there are some very important jobs in the President's Cabinet.

THE job requires men who can think for themselves or [illegible] less the mental work to [illegible]. Then [illegible]

MOST Cabinet officers are picked from the country rather than the city.

THEY go to Washington because they hear the country calling them. They're in Washington about five days when they hear the country calling them again. The second time is always in earnest.

Gossip of the Boxers

Henry Meyers called today and issued a flock of challenges in behalf of his boxers. Said Henry:

"Billy Carney is talking about fighting Young Kloby. 'Tis to laugh. I mentioned the matter to Kloby and he asked me why Carney didn't fight Frank Tillo if he is so eager to get action in the ring. I was forced to tell the Lawrence warrior that I didn't believe Carney had enough courage to enter a ring with the North End puncher.

"Carney has been dodging Tillo for some time. Apparently he realized that my protege is not so easy to dispose of as Mickey Donovan.

"Speaking of fighters, recalls to mind the fact that Freddy Madden is seeking action once more. Bobby Dyson and Paul Demers have been complaining of their inability to secure opponents. Madden stands ready to wallop either of these men."

Welterweights Dodging O'Brien Once More

Here are a few healthy shots delivered today by Cy Goodwin, manager of Shaver O'Brien.

"The New England welterweights are all afraid to battle Shaver O'Brien. They dread the South Boston boy even more now that he has scored an impressive victory over Harry Silva." Frank Tillo, Billy Carney, Mickey Donovan, Eddie Shevlin, Paul Doyle, Nate Siegal, Johny Clinton and the rest of them tell the world how eager they are to get matches. Then some undiplomatic matchmaker offers them a tussle with O'Brien. And they quit cold. I charge that our New England welterweights are bluffers and white flag champions. If they are real fighters why don't they meet Shaver."

O'Dowd or Wilson Will Suit Twin

Jack (Twin) Sullivan called today to inform us that he is now fit for big game. He asserted that his matches with George Robinson and Joe Thomas convinced him he is in shape to take on the real leaders in his class. Jack says he now scales 163 pounds and that he would like to battle either Johnny Wilson or Mike O'Dowd.

Well Known "Unknown" to Meet Gardini

"The wrestler who will meet Gardini in one of the three matches in Mechanics Building on Monday night is not unknown in the ordinary sense," says Promoter Tuohey, who is furnishing three men against three to be put on by Lou Daro. "The Italian said he did not care to know the man or to learn his identity until he steps on the mat.

"The man I have in mind is known to Bostonians, has appeared here several times and his class is shown by the fact that he is one of the very few men to get a decision over Cyclone Burns. He will not be masked, he will not be a ringer."

Canadians Administer Hockey Lesson While Winning Four Goals to One

The batch of bulky brilliants who make up the Aura Lee seven gave the crippled B. A. A. team a hockey lesson in the second match between the sextets, defeating the latter four goals to one. Conacher, Burch, Stephenson and the goal tender, Stewart, were the outstanding stars of the match and the stick-handling of the first named trio completely bewildered their opponents. The B. A. A. was weakened through the absence from the lineup of Wylde, Murphy and Downing, the first two being ill, and Downing having planned not to rejoin the team until next week.

CHAPTER XII.—Continued

IN [illegible] stance, [illegible] a matter of staking [illegible] the County [illegible] [illegible] Among all the complexities of the law, there were [illegible] traveled ways.

He decided—he was back at his [illegible] [illegible] Henry [illegible] [illegible] years and always [illegible]

The telephone was ringing. It was O'Neil. His tone frightened the mayor. O'Neil was blazing, was for coming down hard on the paper.

MacIntyre said, expansively:

"[illegible] leave it to me. I'll [illegible]"

After which he sat [illegible]

He finally pushed the telephone instrument away [illegible] turned to the works of Napoleon, [illegible] up at the engraving of the greatest adventurer standing alone on a hill on St. Helena; unconsciously fell into a similar attitude [illegible] thrusting his right hand [illegible] the frogs on his pajamas. Habit was asserting itself [illegible] notion was gaining ground among his bewildered thoughts that he, like Napoleon, was a fighter, a leader, a prince of men, rising above all mere petty disaster.

Henry MacHennon called up next. MacIntyre told him roughly to sit tight, keep his shirt on.

John Milhenning, the mayor's secretary, [illegible] by while his honor finished dressing.

"Don't you worry," [illegible] his honor, with a petulant joviality. "I see through the whole thing. It's Bob Listerly hitting at O'Neil through me."

The secretary shook his head, heavily.

"That's what it is, my boy. You watch me for a few hours. I'll show you. It's a flank attack. It calls for a sharp counter attack, which I shall make before noon. Then we'll see where Bob stands."

"Listerly isn't here, though. Won't be until tonight. He's in New York."

"But don't you see," cried the mayor eagerly, turning for a moment from the mirror, "that's just what he'd do—run off—leave a goat in charge."

"No," the secretary insisted. "It's too early in the day to get hold of the newspaper boys, of course, but this much I have learned—Frank Winterbeck put this through on his own."

"Ha!" muttered the mayor. "He did that, did he! Well, that makes it just so much easier. Winterbeck's small fry. We'll soon dispose of him!"

Hardly and hour later—it was between nine and ten—Frank Winterbeck was awakened out of a sound sleep by a messenger [illegible] a note from John M[illegible] requesting the editor to come at once to the city attorney's office.

Winterbeck sent a [illegible] refusal and went promptly back to bed.

The mayor kept his house until eleven. Serious men came and went, a number of them. The city attorney called up at [illegible]

[illegible]

Harvey O'Re[illegible] study from [illegible] honor left, hovering over the telephone. By 10:30 [illegible] had jumped from 12[illegible] to 1[illegible], and was still rising. Every small gambler in town who knew the way to a broker's office was buying. Over the wires came the word that New York, Philadelphia and Boston were buying. The melon was already assured of a wide, almost democratic, distribution.

"There's this to consider," said O'Neil. "They're [illegible] They won't know when to stop. It won't stand more than 140 to 142. If they put it up to 145 we can start selling; sell 'em all they can carry away. Bound to be a reaction then."

He said this as much as anything to cheer up the mayor. It had already been necessary to take his liquor away. The man, now, was frightened almost to death. Winterbeck had been reached now—the city attorney had gone straight to his apartment when the messenger came back without him, and routed him out. The story came in over the telephone, toward eleven. Winterbeck had told him to go to hell. At the threat of action, he laughed. To the demand that he print a retraction on front page of tomorrow's News, he replied that they would have to see Mr. Listerly. Mr. Listerly could have his resignation in one minute, but he wouldn't backwater for anybody else. And he wouldn't print a retraction even for him. "Tim MacIntyre's a contemptible crook," he said. "Everybody knows it, but before this we've never caught him. This ought to be enough to stir up a little inquiry into paving contracts. For that matter, we might look into that grandstand habit of his."

O'Neil repeated all this verbatim to the mayor, thinking it might stir his fighting blood. But the mayor collapsed into his swivel chair. They let him have a drink of whiskey then just to keep him going.

[illegible] At seven he [illegible]

[illegible] his crowd were Democrats [illegible] for fourteen years. But [illegible] money has no party. So it was [illegible] of bosses that the [illegible] rushed [illegible]

Mr. Listerly picked up a [illegible] of the News at noon, in the [illegible] [illegible] proprietor [illegible] tle. After which [illegible] car, he wrote two telegrams and had the [illegible] off for him. The one [illegible] simply—"Neil County Railways." The other, to Frank Winterbeck, [illegible] "Meet me at the [illegible]"

"Have a cigar," said the [illegible] Winterbeck when they met. "[illegible] the dust out of your throat. [illegible] a dusty trip. Never saw the country so dry in Spring. Who wrote [illegible]"

"Stafford."

"Hmm! Thought so. [illegible] and young [illegible]"

"You told me once not to go after MacIntyre until I got the [illegible] him. This thing [illegible] usual palaver, re the Unveiling. He came back and wrote this. It's [illegible] goods on Tim all right. It's [illegible] answerable. [illegible] could [illegible] arrest. But they [illegible] answer this. It's the most powerful thing [illegible] ever had. Makes a monkey out of him."

"Yes, [illegible] that. So you decided to run it as it stood."

"[illegible]"

"No," Mr. Listerly smoked easily, "no good in that."

"And now, Mr. Listerly, I want your permission to follow it up. This books up with all that old stuff we've had on Tim. I want to go after [illegible]"

[illegible]

By eight that evening Winterbeck [illegible] planned in detail—three of his best men were on the case—when Mr. Listerly strolled out and [illegible] horses' [illegible]

"Got a little disappointment for you, Frank," he said.

He tossed a typed paragraph on the desk.

Winterbeck snatched it up and read:

"The News yesterday, during the absence of the publisher from the city, published a story purporting to be an interview with Mayor T. J. MacIntyre that was, on its face, libelous, scurrilous, utterly false. It was written by a new member of the staff, who, needless to say, has since been discharged.

"The publisher of the News deeply regrets that this paper should have been made, for one day, the vehicle for so malicious an assault, apparently instigated by interests outside the city, on the character of our Mayor. Personally and in the name of the paper I hereby apologize to Mr. MacIntyre, and further beg to assure him that the News hereby pledges to him its continued unqualified support.

(Signed) "R. B. LISTERLY,
"Publisher."

Winterbeck's face slowly paled. He seemed to be reading the paper over and over.

Hodder nodded.

"You've inquired there?"

"That woman went to the hospital, you know. She may be with another one. If she is, Gratz ought to find her . . . You know there was a time, Mr. Hodder, when I didn't have much hope that we'd pull her through. But we got hold of her through her feelings. She'd do anything for Mr. Bentley—she'd do anything for you and it's a way she stuck to that embroidery was fine. I don't say she was cured, but whenever she'd feel one of those fits [illegible] about it, and we'd watch her. And I never saw one of that kind change so. Why, she must be almost as good looking now as she ever was."

"[illegible] anything desperate?" asked Hodder, slowly.

"Well—somehow I don't. She used to say if she ever got drunk [illegible] And we didn't have any warning. [illegible]"

"It might not do harm to notify the police," replied Hodder, rising. [illegible]

[illegible] And as he walked rapidly across [illegible] set on Kate Marcy's redemation. [illegible] fortnight had been absorbed by the cares, responsibilities, and trials thrust upon him, he reproached himself for not having gone oftener to Dalton street. And yet, if Mr. Bentley and Sally Grover had been unable to foresee and prevent [illegible]

The chief received him deferentially, sympathetically, took down Kate Marcy's description, went so far as to remark, sagely, that too much mustn't be expected of these women, and said he would [illegible] left, too preoccupied to draw any significance from the nature of his [illegible] He went at once to Mr. Bentley's.

Hodder was surprised. He had never heard Mr. Bentley speak of the bishop. Of course he must know him.

"I have my talk with him tomorrow."

Mr. Bentley said nothing, but pressed his hand again.

On Tower street, from the direction of the church, he beheld a young man and a young woman approaching, [illegible] absorbed in conversation. [illegible] seemed familiar, and presently he identified the [illegible] figure in the blue dress as that of the daughter of his vestryman, Francis Ferguson. Presently she turned her face, alight with animation, from her companion, and recognized him.

"It's Mr. Hodder!" she exclaimed, and was suddenly overtaken with a crimson shyness. The young man seemed equally embarrassed as they stood facing the rector.

"I'm afraid you don't remember me, Mr. Hodder," he said. "I met you at Mr. Ferguson's last Spring."

CHAPTER LXXIX.

THE man had stealthily signalled to Ann and after placing the note in the bushes where she could see it, had slipped away as [illegible] as he had come. Ann gave no sign that she had seen him and was busily trying to figure out how she could get the note without the maid seeing her.

She knew if she started to stroll slowly into the shrubbery the maid would [illegible] There was no view from that side of the grounds and so, of course, no excuse Ann could give for wanting to walk into the shrubbery. If only a bird would light in the tree, she thought, she would be able to make that an opportunity to walk and grasp the note while pretending to admire the bird. But birds were strangely absent that morning.

[illegible] hurry out of the house into a waiting automobile and disappear in the direction of [illegible] reasoned from all the hurrying of late, the frequent visitors, the secret conversations and general excitement about the place that things were coming to a head and she was still powerless to warn those of Montgomery & Company, of the imminent revolution.

She thought the man she had seen in the shrubbery was a detective. If she was correct, they had located her and Gomez's wireless message [illegible] no trouble even yet. The Spanish maid told her it was time they were going in and get ready for luncheon. Ann knew the note left in the shrubbery was her only chance of communication with the outside world.

As they got up to go into the house Ann laughingly hurled her hat into the air. It fell right in where the note was waiting for her in the bushes. The maid started to get it for her, but Ann ran past her, seized the hat she had so luckily thought of, also the note, which she quickly put into the bosom of her dress. It giving her first real laugh in a long time, she hurried into the room of the [illegible] windows.

Stingiest Person

One dollar will be paid for each letter printed.

Dear Sir—While out with a wealthy young man of my acquaintance, we went into a music store. He picked out the most expensive music for me, which I had no intention of buying, and said: "You pay for as much as you have money for, and we'll leave the rest."

I consider him the stingiest person that I know.

"YOU certainly made a clean sweep of Brother's closets," commented Jeanie when I came into Jim's room after sending Bertha out to search for Lyons.

This gave me exactly the opening I needed.

"Can't you guess what that means?" I asked. "Jim's going to be gone for a long trip. Important affairs are taking him farther away than you imagine. And he's going to be so completely occupied that you probably won't even get a brotherly post-card from him."

"Well, I declare—that sounds very [illegible] and mysterious," laughed Virginia. Then she went on briskly: "But the further he goes and the longer he stays, the more important it is for you to come out to us. Now, hurry up, sister mine, and get ready to come along with me now."

"I can't——"

"Nonsense. You've a whole hour yet. And Pat won't mind waiting and having dinner in town. Why, Anne, that's the very ideal Bertha isn't coming out tonight, and you and I won't enjoy [illegible] fussy little waitress of mine get dinner. There! It's all settled. We can't proceed."

Something in Virginia's air of satisfied leadership gave me a moment's strength and the courage to do a little deciding of my own.

"It's settled in my mind, too, Jeanie. I'll lend you my Hedwig. She'll go out with you and Pat and do substitute duty for Bertha. And Bertha will stay here with me. But I can't race out to Dreamwold like [illegible] Now, you let sister Anne stay here and get her bearings tonight, and tomorrow—we'll see what we'll see."

"No, dear"—began Jeanie.

But I interrupted with lightness that had a serious undercurrent.

"Yes, dear, I'm running one section of this [illegible] stay here with my plans and [illegible] I've things to adjust before I leave this dear home, which I might never be able to come back to if things went all wrong for Jim."

"I promise, dear."

Jeanie caught me in her arms then, with a tenderness that made me ache because it held so many little mannerisms just like my Jim's.

After that she and I picked the valuables I wanted to leave with her and Pat in the Dreamwold safe instead of in the apartment where now there was no man to protect me. Then we hurried Hedwig into preparations for her visit to the country. So by the time Pat arrived everything was in readiness for him.

Bertha hadn't returned when the travellers were ready to depart. Fortunately the absence of Anne had passed unnoticed, so no one demurred about leaving me alone.

But when 7 o'clock came and still no Bertha I found myself getting a bit nervous.

"Where's Neal?" I asked suddenly, first of myself.

[illegible] that Neal had gone to Dreamwold without making an effort to see me? It seemed entirely unlike [illegible] simply wasn't my Neal. [illegible] I got up resolutely and went out to prepare a little supper for two.

In the midst of my preparations Neal arrived just as I had known—and I was glad in my heart of hearts I had known—he must do.

He gave me one of his dear, boyish bear hugs.

"You knew I'd come, didn't you, Babbsie?"

"But why are you so late?"

"Well, I've been sleuthing around a little on some things I thought you might like to get back of and wire Jim about. I went down to his office and that Miss Sterrs, who's in charge, sent me off on a couple of [illegible] that didn't seem to lead anywhere."

"Miss Sterrs?" I asked.

"Yes—that big [illegible] looking girl who's in charge."

"I didn't know—the office was opened," I continued.

But, as I temporised with Neal, I wondered who the woman could be whom Jim had left in charge of his office.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By Beatrice Fairfax

A Barrier Ahead

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am twenty-one and considered pretty. About two months ago I met a man fifteen years my senior. He loves me, but I have as yet not learned to love him. He has proposed to me several times, and not knowing what to do I always put him off, telling him I will let him know. ANXIOUS.

WITHOUT love you have a barrier more impassable than fourteen years. With love, the great difference in your ages won't prevent a sharing of interests, sympathy and the love that comes from understanding.

YO HO AND HO, HO, HO!—The Pirate ship lands once a year at Tampa, Fla.; the only pirate that goes away from the hospitable South with anything. The crew of the Gasparilla XIII. decks out annually and takes possession of the town. They capture the keys of the city, and everything but the w. k. bottle of rum. (U. & U.)

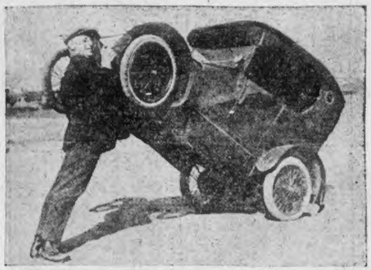
EACH FLAG MEANS A LIFE—When some charitable person contributes for the relief of Europe's starving children, one tombstone is removed from this cemetery in the heart of San Diego, Cal. An American flag is put in its place showing that the life of another child has been saved. (U. & U.)

BLACK DIAMONDS—The mine owners in Germany are unable to recruit enough men to handle their products. So the women, accustomed to harsh labor during the war, have taken up the burden. This picture shows a German matron pushing a coal wagon in one of the mines. Use of female labor seems to be the only solution of the trans-Atlantic economic situation. (World Wide)



IT'S EASY IF YOU KNOW HOW—No need of getting under your car when something goes wrong. Just pick it up and tilt it back. This can be done without taking your coat off, if you have the system. Ed Unger, veteran parachute jumper, shows how a hefty touring car can be upended while the mechanic investigates the source of trouble. (U. & U.)

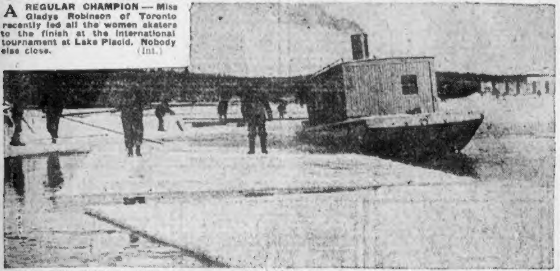
HARDING'S GUARD—Sergeant Samuel Murphy—sounds Democratic—is waiting at the White House for the new President. He has just been appointed head of the inauguration day detail. (U. & U.)



KEEP THE CHANNEL OPEN—This news is flashed to the skipper of the latest brand of ice-breaking boat. He gets steam up and crashes down the river. His "scow" knocks the ice blocks for a goal—displaces as many as six men could working all day and night under the old system. The ice eraser doesn't mind a load on the prow of sixteen tons. Everything is pushed aside, unless the temperature falls unbelievedly low. The boat is made as wide as the river, and the ice cutters have merely to pile up the blocks that are pushed ashore. It took a [illegible] of 23 lives, and injured scores seriously. The [illegible] damage amounted to more than $50,000. Only one white person was killed. Elderly People Need This In Medicine Chest

To relieve chronic constipation, always keep a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin handy.

NEARLY all people as they advance in age suffer from chronic constipation. Many, however, are indifferent to the laxative they use, on the theory that "they are all alike." That is a great mistake.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, for example, is a mild, gentle liquid laxative, and it does not lose its effect with repeated use. It so trains the bowel muscles that in time medicines of all kinds can be dispensed with.

A sixty-cent bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin will last many months. The prescription was written thirty years ago by Dr. W. B. Caldwell, a well-known family doctor, who is himself now in his 82nd year and can appreciate what chronic constipation must mean to elderly people; how it brings on headaches, colds, loss of appetite and sleep, heaviness and a general dull feeling.

Every home that has an elderly man or woman should be provided with a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. Eight million bottles were bought at drug stores last year. It is a truly wonderful constipation remedy.

MOTION PICTURE NEWS

Skillful Acting of Boston's Own Pauline Frederick Features "The Mistress of Shenstone"

By FRIEDA DAVIS.

PAULINE FREDERICK

PAULINE FREDERICK is always satisfying, even in a mediocre story such as "The Mistress of Shenstone" playing at the Park Theatre this week. That she is satisfying in this picture is another feather in her cap, for there is nothing whatever to back her up here, unless it be the splendid lighting effects and striking settings.

Miss Frederick is, first of all, an emotional actress, and it has been as such that she has won screen fame, but in this case she is called upon to do very little acting of that sort. Her role is passive from start to finish.

The frivolous wife of a serious and studious man, Sir Michael Ingleby, Myra thinks things over while he is away at war and realizes the gulf that has always been between them. She knows that his cousin, Peter, has always been far closer to him than she has, and plans to become, as she terms it, "an adequate wife" when he returns.

When word comes that Michael has been killed, she is prostrated. She learns that he was killed, not by the enemy, but through the blunder of a comrade who mistook signals when he was working with a deadly explosive. She refuses to hear the name of the man responsible for the death.

Her doctor orders a complete change for her and she goes to a little sea-port town in Cornwall, where she is known as Mrs. O'Mara. There she meets Jim Airth, who has come to rest. After an adventure in which Airth saves her life, she finds that Airth loves her, and when he learns who she really is, finds that he is the man who caused Michael's death.

Here an element of weakness creeps in. An opportunity is presented for a strong, emotional crisis before the end. On the contrary, the point is not made much of. Myra declares she doesn't care, that she loves Jim and will forget about the past. After a few short scenes of argument, things straighten out.

This is, I think, the second picture Miss Frederick has made for Robertson-Cole. The material given her is not as strong as she has had in the past and the supporting cast not as well-balanced. She, however, is always good, both attractive and skillful in her playing, and can get something out of any story. Roy Stewart is adequate as Jim Airth, though his powers of acting seem limited. He is throughout a perfect example of what the well-dressed man should wear.

RICH GLADYS WALTON, POOR GLADYS WALTON.

THE companion picture at the Park deserves a special word. "Rich Girl, Poor Girl," starring Gladys Walton, Universal's "find," is one of the most delightful comedies screened in some time. On the order of Eleanor Gates' play "The Poor Little Rich Girl," filmed by Mary Pickford several years ago, it tells of Nora McShane of Fish Alley and Beatrice Vanderdyke of Fifth avenue. What happens when they exchange clothes and lives make the most entertaining story imaginable.

Miss Walton has a fascinating personality and an ingenious manner that exactly suits the type parts Universal has given her. In the dual role of Nora and Beatrice she was on the screen most of the time, but at no time did one tire of her. There are few players who can dominate a film as much as she did and keep an audience happy for five reels.

WILL ROGERS SAYS:

WILL ROGERS' fame began while he was in the Ziegfeld Follies a few years ago. At that time he simply twirled a rope and had a cowboy act. One day he missed a trick and made a remark about it. The house fairly rocked with glee. He looked around in surprise, made another remark and after that—well, he became one of the "Follies" stars immediately.

His screen work hasn't kept him silent, though, and now and then the Goldwyn players get him talking. Here's something he told them last week:

"Some of our soldiers are still in Germany. They're being kept there to receive the mail sent them during the war.

"I understand we also have some soldiers in Siberia now and they can't be sent home because nobody in the War Department knows where Siberia is.

"I am one of the very few moving picture actors who has the original wife he started out with. She's not bragging about it, but I am."

LUCY COTTON is going to Havana on March 1, for the first vacation she has had in several years. She will stop off at Ormonde, Key West and Palm Beach to make appearances at the theatres there, where "The Misleading Lady," in which she plays opposite Bert Lytell, will be shown.

MARION DAVIES led the grand march with Governor Edwards of New Jersey at the Washington's Birthday dance of the Sixth Infantry, National Guard of New Jersey on Monday night. She also acted as one of the judges in a beauty contest held during the evening.

JEWEL CARMEN is another movie star to take pictures in Palm Beach. She and her company left New York for Florida last week. Kenneth Harlan, who has played with Constance Talmadge lately, will be her leading man in the new picture and Roland West, her husband, will direct the film.

ELLA SHIELDS, one of the vaudeville stars who is rivaling Kitty Doner in male impersonation, is considering an offer to star in pictures for the Robert Russell Productions.

SPEAKING OF "THE FOUR HORSEMEN."

THE King of Spain is one of the few monarchs who is considered, even in America, a "regular person." He is not only an ardent movie fan but he has invested quite a bit of money in producing films.

It is not surprising, then, to find that he has arranged to have a showing of Metro's "The Four Horseman of the Apocalypse" at the palace in Madrid. At the same time that the film will be shown in this country a copy will be given to Blasco Ibanez, the author, to take to the King. The English and American ambassadors will be the guests at the showing.

PERIN CLUB TO HEAR DR. GRAPEK NEXT MONDAY

The Perin Club of the Universalist Chuch of Brookline, Coolidge Corner, has secured Dr. Charles Grapek, osteopathic physician and surgeon, to give an address and practical demonstration to their members and friends on "First Aid by Means of Your Ten Fingers."

Dr. Grapek has been quoted several times by various Boston papers on questions relative to osteopathic treatment. The club has extended its invitation to the men of the community to hear this interesting and educational address on Monday evening, February 28, at 8 o'clock.

Although Dr. Grapek is an M. D., he specializes in drugless methods of healing, and has been heard by many of the professional clubs and fraternal societies of Boston, and each time his audience has taken away valuable practical health hints.

North Dakota May Prove a John Brown to Bankers

Copyright, 1921, Star Company

North Dakota had the audacity to organize a Non-Partisan League, the idea being to manage the State and its resources for the benefit of farmers and other producers, instead of allowing the State to be exploited entirely on a private ownership basis.

The State determined to own its banks, grain elevators, railroads, BUT—such things require money. Money is borrowed from banks, banks are owned and ruled by great financiers. Great financiers don't LIKE presumptuous States to manage and own their resources. That "checks opportunity."

North Dakota needs $6,000,000, offers to sell State bonds, perfectly good, and is willing to pay 9 per cent. interest, if she must. It is a great temptation, for buyers of the bonds would get their 9 per cent. and not pay a penny income tax to the government, State bonds being free of tax. South Dakota can sell her 6 per cent. bonds above par to the prosperous tax dodgers. North Dakota can't borrow a dollar.

South Dakota is dreaming no public ownership dreams, therefore plenty of money to lend her.

Boycotted financially, North Dakota tries to borrow six millions from the American Federation of Labor. Four million union men could easily lend the money—it would be only a dollar and a half each. But things are not done in that way. For six million, you must go to banks.

The result will show whether North Dakota really means self-government or is yet too backward and needs to be ruled by its betters, like the other States.

If some new plague began eating the North Dakota crops, if wild Indians rose from their graves and came marauding, and if six millions would save the crops or kill the Indians, the six millions would be found quickly enough. Human beings get about as good a government as they deserve, and get only that for which they are willing to PAY, in money or blood or both.

Doesn't it impress the average reader as interesting that the government of a sovereign State is considered presumptuous when it pretends to do for itself and for the profit of every citizen, what private individuals do for themselves and for their profit?

Private INDIVIDUALS own grain elevators, banks and railroads. But the people of a State must not combine to do the same things, for that, dearly beloved, is a combination of Bolshevism, Socialism and anarchy, with perhaps a dash of "free love" and atheism thrown in.

Sixty years ago, it was a crime for a slave owner to teach his slave how to read and write. That is ended now, the slave owners lost their grip.

Today, it is a financial crime for the people of a State to try to learn how to govern themselves and control their own resources. But, that also will end. The private owners of public monopoly and public property will lose their grip just as the slave owners did. It is to be hoped that the operation of letting go will be less painful and less expensive, than the experience of 1865.

Financial boycotting of a State as punishment for the attempted crime of self-government, may seem to the boycotters wiser than it really is. They may kill off the non-partisan league, for individuals are selfish, and soon get tired of an idea. But that won't mean anything.

The slave owners killed John Brown, hanged him neatly and completely. But THAT was a mistake. John Brown stayed buried, but his idea came back.

Centres of Population and of Thought

Our old friend, the centre of population, has traveled westward at the rate of a mile a year in the last decade.

The centre of population moves more slowly than anything else in the country except budget legislation in Congress. A self-respecting glacier looks like an express train beside it. It changes almost as imperceptibly as the political principles of Mr. Bryan. Owen County (Indiana) farmers may now sit in the shade of it probably for a quarter of a century without moving.

But in this comparative fixity there is a profound reassurance. "How we change!" said Sentimental Tommy to Aaron Latta. "How we dinna change!" replied Aaron, and had the right of it. The country grows, but its proportions remain unaltered, like those of a tree.

This mythical centre of population is symbolic of our national convictions. They spread out, they thicken, they shift about, apparently, but their centre remains the same. The right to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness; free expression of opinion, and the conviction that mutual progress depends on the development of the powers of the individual to their fullest capacity, with all possible legitimate assistance from a collective society—that is our centre of conviction.

It may wabble a bit now and then, but it does not change much from generation to generation.

Subtle Alliance Threatens Our Commerce

The same calculated British resentment that could not rest while Germany had a growing navy and a world-wide commerce will sooner or later create an alliance to make war upon OUR growing navy and expanding commerce. Any man who has eyes to see can see this subtle hostility at work now in Japan, and this subtle diplomacy at work in Europe.

We desire only peace. But that is all poor Russia desired. She got starvation, pillage, massacre and one brutal invasion after another. These horrors would be still going on if Russia, in her misery and despair, had not learned how to fight back and to prepare to fight harder.

The League of Nations never lifted a finger to save Russia from the brigandage of the two most powerful members of that hypocritical sham. And the League of Nations would not and could not save us from the attack if a combination of powers concluded that it could defeat us and get some of our possessions.

More Truth Than Poetry

Good Things of Life

By S. E. KISER

IT is good to be ambitious, good to have a genial way;
Good to turn sometimes from duty and indulge in healthful play;
It is good to be courageous, good to hum a hopeful song
And still keep on trying bravely when another gets along.

IT is good to have some talent that may help to bring you fame;
It is good in times of trouble to have someone else to blame;
It is good to be forgetting petty spites and foolish fears,
And it's good to keep from fretting when there's little cause for tears.

IT is good to be applauded when you've done a worthy deed;
It is good to be a leader and be loved by those you lead;
It is good to be good looking, to have youth and grace and dash;
Good to have a rich old uncle who will leave you all his cash.

IT is good to be fulfilling some good purpose every day;
It is good to be unwilling to be weakened by dismay;
It is good to keep hope spurting at the fountainhead of life,
And it's good to keep from flirting with your neighbor's pretty wife.

Should Insane Be Put to Death?

Should the hopelessly insane be put to death? Would it not be better for all concerned if the hundreds of maniacs, beyond any chance of recovery, who are living out lives of misery in our asylums, could mercifully be put out of their pain?

The legislators of Connecticut are considering this question. They were led to it by what they saw during a recent inspection of the Connecticut State Hospital for the Insane at Norwich.

In the Magazine Section of the next Boston Sunday Advertiser two full pages are devoted to a story and photographs picturing conditions in insane asylums, and presenting arguments for some legal means of putting an end to the sufferings of inmates for whom there can be no cure.

These are hard days for princes. For example, the Prince Pignatelli d'Aragon has been making pitiful attempts to obtain employment, with slight success. The Prince's wealthy and sympathetic father-in-law is George Jason Waters, a hard-working business man.

Mr. Waters has told, for the Boston Sunday Advertiser, the story of his royal son-in-law's efforts to support himself, and the difficulties which have beset his way.

Audrey Munson, whose revelations of life as it is lived in the studios of New York's greatest artists have created the stir of the year among newspaper features, continues her life story in this week's Boston Sunday Advertiser.

This instalment tells how a simple maiden of sixteen was able to give a noted artist his inspiration for the wonderful statue, "The Spirit of Louvain," which King Albert of Belgium purchased while he was in America. She also tells of the triumphs and tragic fate of Marie de Socci, once the darling of Paris—and today a scrubwoman. Be sure to read this feature in the Magazine Section.

Francis Wilson, who charmed Boston audiences in "Erminie," was a judge not long ago. Actor Tannen couldn't explain to Nora Bayes why he was late for her play, and "Hizzoner" was called on to settle the affair. He did it, with the help of the telephone girl. All this seems rather foolish, but when you read the story in the Magazine Section of the Boston Sunday Advertiser next week "all will be explained."

WASHINGTON, D. C.,
Feb. 23.
ENRICO CARUSO.
VANDERBILT HOTEL.
NEW YORK City.
MY DEAR Caruso.
I MIGHT have written.
ONE DAY last week.
AND TOLD you.
WHAT I have to tell.
BUT ON those days.
THERE WAS a fear.
WITHIN MY heart.
THAT WHAT it was.
I HAD to tell.
WOULD BE too late.
AND ERE it came.
YOUR GOLDEN voice.
WOULD HAVE been stilled.
AND SO I prayed.
AS MEN do pray.
WHO VOICE a wish.
AND VOICE a hope.
AND WE have won.
AND NOW I come.
TO TELL to you.
THAT ON one day.
WHEN YOU had gone.
JUST TO the border.
OF THE mystery land.
I WANDERED out.
FROM MY hotel.
AND STROLLED
PAST HUMBLE homes.
IN WASHINGTON.
AND AMBLING on.
THERE CAME to me.
THE MUSIC.
OF A phonograph.
AND THERE I stood.
AND IT was you.
IN THAT rare song.
"A FURTIVE Tear."
AND WHILE I stood.
AN ASH man came.
AND STOOD with me.
AND THEN a man.
WHO MIGHT have been.
A SENATOR.
AND IN the window.
WHERE THE music was.
A WOMAN stood.
WITH BENDED head.
AND THAT was all.
EXCEPT.
THAT WHEN the music stopped.
WE WENT our way.
EACH WITH a prayer.
FOR YOU and yours.

I THANK you.

Moslem Princesses in Our Schools

By EDITH DAVIDS.

MANILA, P. I., Dec., 1920.

"THE United States began here its most fascinating experiment in the Philippines—the first attempt in history to give popular education to the masses of Mohammedan womanhood."

The Government School for Moro Princesses in Jolo was the place, the speaker J. W. Light, Superintendent of Sulu Schools. Jolo is the capital of Sulu Province, comprising the Philippine Islands strung through the Sulu Sea from Basilan down to Borneo. The province is inhabited by Moros — Mohammedan Malays. They practise polygamy, sanctioned by the Koran.

Uncle Sam has established public schools throughout his Mohammedan dominions. Even in farthest Sitankai, which simmers at the south end, there is one, and in neighboring Sibutu—burial place of Makadum, the Arab Wise Man, who turned the Moros to Islam two centuries before the monk Urdaneta converted the Filipinos to Christianity. Except for the princesses in this Jolo school, however, up to two years ago the public schools were not attended by Moslem girls.

The balcony of the princesses' dormitory overlooked the small Walled City. The market-place, with its barbarically colorful Moro groups amid heaps of exotic fruits, was visible; bosky squares, palm-shaded and flower-smothered, and gardened sea-wall along a strip of glittering blue. Like shadows flitting through the tropical brilliance, Moslem women—not veiled like other Daughters of the Prophet—wrapped about them black, flowing sarongs, held by finger tips yellow-stained with henna. From the balcony we stepped into a salon, darkly walled and floored in native hardwoods.

Forty-one velvet-eyed little maids formed a circle about me and courtesied.

"Salip Tayang!" called Mr. Light. Stepping forth, unsmiling in dignity, a tot lifted the chiselled face of Arabia. "'Salip' is her title," Mr. Light explained. "It means 'a direct descendant' of Mohammed." Princess Nara Muhammed, aged ten, her father Secretary to the Sultan of Sulu, ranked next to the small "direct descendant." There were nine young daughters of Moro datus from the great Lake of Lanao, an inland sea, which has always been the centre of Moro life and of the production of their beautiful brassware. Fourteen-year-old Princess Mihitan Baginda would return to her province the following year to teach. Princess Haviba Bagis, of Turkish ancestry, had just gone home to Sitankai to be a bride.

Moro girls are likely to marry at fourteen. The princesses are guarded by chaperons. If anything were to impair the social prestige of one of these small prospective wives it would set back for a generation feminine education in Moro Land. For here a girl has commercial value to her parents. Her would-be husband must pay to them a bride-price. This varies in amount according to the rank and beauty of the desired one.

As we went through the classrooms—on the blackboard of one was written in English: "If one mango costs two centavos, seven mangoes will cost ——?" Mr. Light explained:

"We worked from the top social stratum down. American officers who had here and there made friends of powerful Moro datus persuaded them, personally, to send their little girls here.

"The Government pays all their expenses, as well as tuition. It sends them home for vacation periods accompanied by chaperons.

"Six Mohammedan princesses have completed the course. They have learned English and now teach in public schools. One is a niece of the Sultan. The way having been paved with the intelligent upper class, compulsory education of Moslem girls has been extended downward.

"Fourteen thousand Daughters of the Prophet now attend public schools. And 'co-ed' schools!"

Have You Any Songs From Ireland?

Editor Boston American.

Sir: Is it possible that any of your readers have any of the songs they are singing in Ireland today. I am told that the fight for freedom has called forth a number of new songs that are as inspiring as the "Battle Cry of Freedom" or the "Star Spangled Banner" were to the people of this great nation. Can't we see them in print?

M. E. G.

Editor's Note: The Editor of the Boston American would be grateful to any reader who would lend him copies of some of these songs. Address

Smith-Towner Bill

What It Aims to Accomplish

National Committee for a Department of Education.

Editor Boston American:

I am sure that you will agree with me that nothing is more vitally needed in this country than to further education, and that in consequence of the personal interest in this need of every citizen and of every resident the subject is one deserving of the fullest consideration in the press. In view of the amount of publicity which has been given to the Smith-Towner bill by those opposed to its passage, I feel sure that you will welcome an analysis of this important measure, which shows the actual scope and power embodied in it.

Your readers have recently seen many statements, some of them in the form of memorials to Congress, characterizing the Smith-Townar bill as an "iniquitous measure," as un-American, undemocratic and unconstitutional. If all things charged against it were true, these adjectives would be correctly applied to the measure, but such fears of Federal control and of violation of State autonomy as have been expressed are the result of misunderstanding. The citizens' committee, of which I am chairman, and which is made up of the persons whose names are printed on this letter, well known for their broad and liberal views on matters of public interest, would certainly not stand for the things which the opponents of this bill are spreading about the country as facts.

As a matter of fact, there is no basis for the objections which have been made to the bill. Two things are proposed: to create a department of education and to provide Federal aid for education in the States. The chief objections boil down to these: First, that it would lead to ultimate Federal domination of the entire educational system and the final elimination of private schools; second, that Federal aid is unnecessary, and, from the point of view of the wealthier States, unfair.

I suppose that the fear of Federal control is the most honest objection raised to the bill, but it simply isn't possible as the bill is drawn. The Secretary of Education is prohibited in the strongest possible terms from interfering in the State's affairs

Is Federal aid necessary for the States in education? In testimony before the House Committee on Education February 15, 1919, Commissioner Claxton said of attempts to remove illiteracy, "It has been left to the States over half a century, and in most instances they have not responded. It is a national problem. The States themselves, probably, if left to themselves, will not meet it effectively." He went on to say that our experience with the Morrill act, the Smith-Hughes act, and so on, indicates that every one of the forty-eight States will respond to Federal encouragement and leadership. The idea of Federal aid in work of national importance is nothing new, as we have pointed out in our brief. Let us use the word "standardize" a little less often and the word "idealize" a little more.

I want to add just a word as to the fairness of having one State help another. Leaving aside humanitarian considerations entirely, it is a simple business proposition. Will it pay Massachusetts to help educate Alabama? We believe it will from the point of view of health, of social contentment and of business. We are being warned of the danger of typhus, which, I am told, is wholly a product of uncleanliness. Nobody questions the national importance of control of epidemics. The public health service sends out vast quantities of instructive material which 8,000,000 people cannot read. Dr. Claxton tells us that 3,500,000 of our illiterates live in the rural districts, and says he is sure that twice that number cannot read the bulletins sent out by the Department of Agriculture. That means that 16,000,000 cannot read well enough to understand the labels required by the Food and Drug act, to say nothing of following the discussions of great questions of national importance. Can they vote wisely, or are they the easy prey of the agitator?

In 1910 11 per cent of the people in Rowan County in Kentucky, practically all native white people, were illiterate. In 1916 there were only eighteen of these same persons who could not read and write. This was the district of the famous "moonlight" schools. Is there anyone who does not think it would make more business for Massachusetts if this were accomplished all over the country, so that there were no longer 8,000,000 or 16,000,000 people who never looked at a paper and never saw an advertisement?

I am sure it will be a new thought to many of your readers to know that the so-called iniquitous and un-American Smith-Townar bill is not entirely the work of teachers. It counts among its authors and supporters the whole American Federation of Labor, the General Federation of Women's Clubs, the National Council of Jewish Women, the National League of Women Voters, and hundreds of organizations the country over. It is high time that we took account of this stock while we are seeing resolutions and memorials characterizing as undemocratic and un-American the measure sought by the millions here represented.

A. LINCOLN FILENE,
Chairman National Committee for a Department of Education.
